CHINA'S POPULATION DECLINES FOR FIRST TIME SINCE 1961

China's demographic crisis deepened in 2022, as its population declined for the first time since 1961 due to a plunging birth rate, the country's statistics office said on Tuesday, amid a forecast that India is poised to overtake the Communist giant as the world's most populous country. China's population in 2022 -- 1.4118 billion -- fell by 850,000 from 2021, the National Bureau of Statistics (NBS) said.

J P Nadda gets a year more at BJP helm till LS poll

Aims for huge majority in general elections

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ New Delhi

PUTTING to rest all speculation, the BJP on Tuesday extended party chief J P Nadda's tenure till June 2024 after wider consultation at the National Executive Committee meeting.

Apparently, the BJP's defeat in the last Assembly election in Nadda's home state Himachal Pradesh did not have any bearing on his extension.

Announcing the decision, Union home minister and BJP's principal strategist Amit Shah said the party under Nadda's leadership got a better strike rate in Bihar and won elections in other states. Shah said Nadda helped the party grow in Telangana and West Bengal.

Shah added that Nadda brought vibrancy to the party by connecting with the masses. "During the pandemic, our party has done significant works under Nadda ji's leadership, be it about providing food and rations to the poor or taking people to hospitals for check-ups and treatment," he added.

He expressed confidence that the BJP, under Prime Minister Narendra Modi and party chief Nadda, will win the 2024 elections with a bigger mandate than 2019.

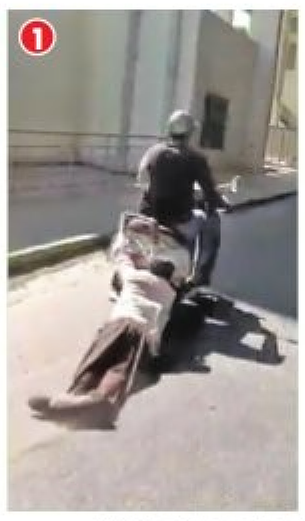
After the decision was announced, Nadda tweeted, "We have to form the BJP government in the next Lok Sabha elections with more than two-thirds majority under the leadership of Modi ji."

Nadda's tenure extension was expected in view of the upcoming elections in nine states and the general elections. On Monday, the first day of the two-day national executive committee meeting, Nadda himself had dropped hints about his extension by calling upon party leaders to gear up for elections in nine states. Nadda's tenure was to expire on January 19.

During the past 42 years, the BJP has elected 11 national presidents.

ROAD RAGE TURNS UGLY AS SCOOTERIST DRAGS MAN FOR 600m



HORROR ON BENGALURU ROAD, PASSERSBY SAVIOURS

IN a shocking incident, a 71-year-old man was dragged for about 600 metres on the road by a scooterist after he clung on to the two-wheeler which rammed his car from behind. The 25-year-old two-wheeler rider was chased by other commuters who forcibly stopped him. The youth was roughed up by the passersby before the police took him into custody. The incident took place in broad daylight on West of Chord Road in Bengaluru on Tuesday afternoon.

The victim, Muthappa Shivayogi Thontapur, a resident of Sanjeevini Nagar in Hegganahalli hailing from Vijayapura, sustained bruises in the incident while the accused, identified as Sahil, a salesman, has been arrested by the Govindaraja Nagar police on charges of attempt to murder.

Thontapur, a publisher by profession, was going to Kuvempu Bhasha Bharati Pradhikara in Chandra Layout for some work in his SUV. Around 2 pm, he pulled over at Toll Gate underpass bridge as he got a phone call. He got down to answer the call when the accused rammed his scooter into the four-wheeler from the rear. Thontapur wanted to stop him but he tried to escape. But Thontapur, clung on to the pillion grab handle. P3

Don't donate to temples, help needy: Seer

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Vijayapura

VISHWA Prasannateertha Swamy of Pejawar Mutt has urged people not to donate money to temples and instead use it to help the needy. Addressing the media here on Tuesday, he said there are many reports of money donated to temples being misused or falling into wrong hands. "The best way to curb this exploitation is to stop donating money to temples and use it for people's welfare. If people have the capacity to build even a small house for the poor, they should do it," he said.

Responding to critics of the Ram Temple being built in Ayodhya who question what the nation will achieve if the temple is built, he said, "I suggest people to launch a campaign before the next Ram Navami to do something for the needy." P4

Flier opens emergency exit of flight by mistake

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Chennai/New Delhi/Bengaluru

AN emergency exit of an Indigo flight was accidentally unlocked by a passenger last month while the aircraft was on the ground, delaying it for over two hours. The incident on Flight 6E 7339 from Chennai to Tiruchirapalli and was reported to the aviation regulator, DGCA, Indigo Airlines revealed in a statement on Tuesday.

The statement came after allegations that the passenger in question was Tejasvi Surya, first-time MP from Bengaluru South and national president of the BJP Yuva Morcha. There was no word from Surya.

The airline did not reveal the identity of the passenger, but went on to add that the flier apologised for the error.

"The event was duly reported. It appears that by mistake the RH emergency exit got opened by a passenger while the aircraft was on ground. The crew took note and resultantly all appropriate airworthiness actions, such as reinstalling of door, pressurisation check etc., were carried out before the release of the aircraft for departure. No safety was compromised," the DGCA said. P4

Bengaluru is our beloved city. Keeping only our home clean will not ensure our streets and neighbourhoods clean. Collective effort from all needs to be started as campaign, where every one of us should act as a Waste Warrior and contribute to keeping our environment clean and tidy.

BBMP is thriving to keep the city clean and tidy .

But, far more effort is welcome from citizens. Waste Warrior doesn't litter in public places, educates others on the importance of using waste bins and most importantly segregates the waste in their house.
Working together with over a crore Waste Warriors, we can surely restore our Garden City to all its former glory and more.

Govt can use Balabrooie for Constitution Club: HC

Says no trees should be cut; Exteriors, interiors must not be changed; Petitioners said it is Bengaluru city's biggest water tower

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court on Tuesday permitted the state government to use Balabrooie Guest House, a historical building constructed in the 1850s on a 14-acre campus, as the Constitution Club by maintaining the aesthetics of the building without making structural modifications and felling of any trees on the premises.

After recording the undertaking given by the state government, a division bench of Chief Justice Prasanna B Varale and Justice Ashok S Kinagi passed the order, while modifying the interim order of status quo passed in 2021.

Giving an undertaking that no tree will be felled and no damage will be done to the trees in the area to accommodate the Constitution Club, the state government submitted that there is no proposal for the construction of the Constitution Club on the premises of the heritage building and it only wanted to maintain the building by improving the aesthetics of the interiors without changing the exterior or interior of the building. The counsel for the petitioners did not file any objections.

Modifying the interim order dated October 7, 2021, the court directed the state government to carry out only maintenance of the building by improving the aesthetics of the interiors.

In the interim order passed on the interlocutory application filed by the petitioners -- Dattatreya T Devare and Bangalore Environment Trust, the court had stated that till the next date of hearing, the parties shall maintain status quo in respect of the structure. The building shall not be allotted to any other organisation until further orders and no felling/trimming of trees, or cutting of shrubs shall take place without the leave of the court, the court ordered.

The petitioners stated that the guest house is the 'biggest water tower' in Bengaluru and has more than century old trees that have roots spread over 40 feet absorbing huge quantities of rainwater. Many dignitaries like Mahatma Gandhi have stayed in the guest house. Its structure cannot be changed. The state and the BBMP must be restrained from felling trees for the construction of "Constitution Club", they prayed.

Walkway will connect ITPB to Metro station

ENS @ Bengaluru

WHITEFIELD techies have reason to smile. Commuting will become easy for over 55,000 employees of International Tech Park Bengaluru (ITPB, formerly ITPL) in Whitefield, as the campus will be directly connected with the nearest Metro station at Pattandur Agrahara.

Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Limited (BMRCL) has given the green signal for ITPB to go ahead with the construction of a walkway running 75 metres from the concourse area of the station to ITPB Park. An MoU in this connection was signed between BMRCL managing director Anjum Parwez and ITPB director Nagabhushanam Gauri Shankar on Tuesday. A Metro official said ITPB would be paying BMRCL Rs 10 crore as it was being done only for the benefit of its employees.

"Construction of the access infrastructure will be carried out by ITPL as per the design approved by BMRCL. This will help over 55,000 employees working at the ITPB campus access their office daily directly from the Metro station without crossing the road," a BMRCL release said.

Pattandur Agrahara station is located between Sadaramangla and Kadugodi stations. This is the first such agreement to be inked on the Baiyappanahalli-Whitefield line, it added.

A few other IT companies that dot the route have expressed interest in having a similar arrangement from the nearest Metro station to their offices.

MP donates TB equipment to BBMP hospital

BENGALURU: Rajya Sabha MP Lahar Singh donated a CBNAAT machine and a mobile handheld X-Ray machine to the Dr Babu Jagjivan Ram BBMP Referral Hospital in Chamarajapet, from his MPLAD funds. The equipment worth Rs 50 lakh will help in the diagnosis of TB. The CBNAAT machine provides results within two hours and the mobile X-ray machine will aid in testing communities located in remote areas which have low access to health facilities. Singh said, "Advance diagnostic equipment like CBNAAT and portable X-ray devices provide quick and accurate results and will go a long way in battling TB. I appeal to everyone to do as much as they can to make Prime Minister Narendra Modi's vision of 'TB Mukth Bharat' by 2025 and 'Karnataka TB free' before 2025 a reality." Following the MP's appeal, Ranka Steels Chairman Babulal Ranka announced the adoption of 300 TB patients in Bengaluru.

Cracks on rapid road denting govt's image, claims Palike source

MOHAMMED YACOOB @Bengaluru

FOLLOWING the Opposition's attack against the government over the alleged 40 per cent commission row, quality of infrastructure projects, as well as cracks in the rapid road project on Old Madras Road, a top BBMP official said that Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai has given a thumbs down to the rapid road project for now.

The official, on the condition of anonymity, said that the CM's Office was apprised of the state of infrastructure projects in Bengaluru, including the ongoing works of the rapid road project.

"The CM said that the government will not take up the rapid road work for now, since the recent cracks would give an opportunity to the Opposition to cast aspersions against the dispensation," the official said.

Last week, the rapid road had developed cracks even before the pilot project of a 500-metre stretch between Old Madras Road's Binnamangala - 100 feet road junction and Adarsha Theatre - Petrol Bunk Junction could be completed. The BBMP in partnership with Ultratech Cement Ltd had completed about 300 metres of the road.

BBMP Chief Commissioner Tushar Girinath earlier had said that first, the evaluation will have to be completed, which will be done through a third party agency like Indian Institute of Science. "The Palike will have to complete the pilot project evaluation and only then would the next phase arrive (sending the report to the CM)," Girinath had said.

Representatives from Ultratech Cement, which is the technology partner in executing the rapid road work, said the rapid road is only a pilot project and the cracks will help in understanding the pros and cons, and improve the technology before asking the BBMP to take the project to other roads.

As per the information, the rapid road project per km will cost 30 per cent more than the white topping project. For the white topping project, the cost is around Rs 7.5 crore per km. The CM had told the BBMP to thoroughly study the project and also work out its cost effectiveness during its inauguration two months ago, however, due to the cracks, the project may not receive a green signal for now.

Another sinkhole, leaking pipe to blame

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

DAYS after a sinkhole formed on Brigade Road near Vellara Junction, another appeared in Mahalakshmi Layout on Tuesday. It was reported by commuters and traffic police around 9am.

Officials from the Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) West Zone were quick to blame Bengaluru Water Supply and Sewerage Board's (BWSSB) leaking water pipe as the reason for the sinkhole near Sapthagiri Kalyana Mantapa at Mahalakshmi Layout Main Road.

According to BBMP and BWSSB officials, it was 3.5ft deep. The road caved in as soon as a truck passed on the stretch. As the video of the sinkhole started making the rounds on social media, BWSSB deployed its men to check and fix the leaking water pipe.

The sinkhole was quickly barricaded by traffic police to avoid accidents, and also ensure smooth flow of traffic. Experts pointed out that due to leaking water pipes, the soil became loose and resulted in a sinkhole.

However, BWSSB did not want it to be termed a sinkhole, but said the road had caved in. BWSSB executive engineer R Harinath said around 9am, the road sank following heavy truck movement. The tyre got stuck but the truck was soon cleared.

"Leakage in the old cast iron pipe had turned the soil loose, and the road caved in. We deployed our men and by 4.45pm, the leak was fixed. The staffers filled wet mix and after two days, the patch will be asphalted," said Harinath.

> There are multiple reasons for sinkholes to form. The soil can be weak, with gaps between the soil grinds, and expansion gradually leads to sinkholes – Mines and Geology department official

EXPERT TALK

Dr Paramesha Naik, faculty, Department of Environmental Science, Bengaluru University, attributed the frequent formation of sinkholes to the destruction of the natural drainage system and top soil, and the subsurface becoming 100 per cent moist.

"During the last two seasons, rain turned Bengaluru's soil completely moist and with the temperature rising, the dryness is leading to cracks inside the subsurface. As a result, sinkholes are developing. The authorities should conduct a subsurface study across Bengaluru, where BWSSB has dug up roads to lay pipes, and also for underground Metro tunnel routes, as it may have caused vibration, leading to the subsurface developing cracks," Naik said.

A Mines and Geology department official, seeking anonymity, said: "There are multiple reasons for sinkholes to form. The soil can be weak, with gaps between the soil grinds, and expansion gradually leads to sinkholes. The seepage of water is making the soil loose and it is giving way, or the clay between the soil grinds is not being treated appropriately, due to which it is cracking and the soil is sinking. It also happens when the soil is overburdened in some areas, and there is water seepage underneath. There is a need for pressure study of soil surfaces across the city to know its strength."

IISc, Canadians detect radio signal from distant galaxy

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

ASTRONOMERS from McGill University in Canada and researchers from Indian Institute of Science (IISc), Bengaluru, have used data from the Giant Metrewave Radio Telescope (GMRT) in Pune to detect a radio signal originating from atomic hydrogen in a distant galaxy.

Researchers say the astronomical distance over which such a signal has been picked up is the largest so far by a large margin. This is also the first confirmed detection of strong lensing of 21cm emission from a galaxy. The findings have now been published by the Royal Astronomical Society.

Researchers said that atomic hydrogen is the basic fuel required for star formation in a galaxy. When hot ionised gas from the surrounding medium falls on to the galaxy, the gas cools and forms atomic hydrogen, which then becomes molecular hydrogen and eventually leads to the formation of stars. Therefore, understanding the evolution of galaxies over cosmic time requires tracing the evolution of neutral gas at different cosmological epochs, they said.

Pic for representation

Atomic hydrogen emits radio waves of 21cm wavelength, which can be detected using low frequency radio telescopes like the GMRT. Thus, 21cm emission is a direct tracer of the atomic gas content in both nearby and distant galaxies. However, this radio signal is extremely weak and it is nearly impossible to detect the emission from a distant galaxy using current telescopes due to their limited sensitivity.

Using GMRT data, Arnab Chakraborty, postdoctoral researcher at the Department of Physics and Trottier Space Institute of McGill University, and Nirupam Roy, Associate Professor, Department of Physics, IISc, have detected a radio signal from atomic hydrogen in a distant galaxy.

Chakraborty said that due to the immense distance to the galaxy, the 21cm emission line had redshifted to 48cm by the time the signal travelled from the source to the telescope. The signal detected by the team was emitted from this galaxy when the universe was only 4.9 billion years old.

The team also observed that the atomic hydrogen mass of this particular galaxy is almost twice as high as its stellar mass. These results demonstrate the feasibility of observing atomic gas from galaxies at cosmological distances in similar lensed systems, with a modest amount of observing time.

There is soon to be a sensitive relationship between the Sun and Neptune, indicating that what is truly important now is to be as creative, imaginative and romantic as possible, no matter what people in authority demand. If professional matters are on your mind, then get talking: other people need to know what you think.

TAURUS
(Apr. 21 - May 21)
Travel plans should be pushed up the agenda, for there will be no better way to lift your morale than to dream of foreign parts. Profes-sionally, you can probably afford to rest on your laurels, but only until the next series of extraordinary demands arrives.

GEMINI
(May 22 - June 21)
Some reassuring aspects to your sign make it clear that your wishes are paramount. The nature of your lunar alignments could mean that, in the absence of fresh responsibilities, you'll have time to put your feet up. The clock is ticking away though, and a deadline could be here sooner than you think.

CANCER
(June 22 - July 23)
It may not yet be the right time to play your trump cards, even though the pressures are growing. You'll be able to make a bigger splash in around two or three days' time, so hold your fire. At home, it's best to concentrate on what you can do to put matters right rather than worrying about what went wrong.

LEO
(July 24 - Aug. 23)
There is so much that needs to be said, and so little time in which to say it, but one way or another you must prepare your ground properly. You will very soon realise that material security was not the real issue, and in future you may be more prepared to cut loose.

(Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
Times are still busy and getting more so by the day. For a while it looked as if you were about to return to square one at work, but this may no longer be the case. Everything is up for grabs. Some of you are feeling worn out, but you've learnt an important lesson - to pace yourself properly next time round.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
This is a fine day to take care of joint financial arrangements, although it doesn't look as if anything particularly important will be decided. It will also be nice if you have a chance to spend someone else's money. Secret information could be revealed soon, so have your story ready.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
During the past few weeks you have probably imagined that loved ones and partners have taken leave of their senses - and you could be right! But then you of all people should understand their need to be irrational and unpredictable! If you see the world through partners' eyes, then you'll expand your own horizons.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
You should take care to deal with all routine chores, paying every attention to all minor details. That's the only way to ensure that when the time comes to enjoy yourself, all cares and hassles are safely resolved. Don't let the past blind you to the pleasures of the present.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
Sober Saturn's progress through your chart is now at a critical stage, suggesting that a plateau has been reached. It could therefore be time for a breather, and you should allow partners to take some of the strain. Step in to help as and when you feel you're needed.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
It's certainly time for some hard thinking, and if you manage to get to grips with those crucial issues, partners and colleagues may have cause for gratitude. Move fast before you lose the advantage. You may have a second chance in the future, but by then other circumstances will have changed.

8L Covishield doses in, spl booster camps to start

State had only Covaxin, orders not placed due to low vax demand

AKNISREE KARTHIK
@ Bengaluru

AFTER much delay, the state has received 8 lakh Covishield vaccines and will be organising special vaccination camps from this weekend. The focus of the camps will be to improve the booster dose (third dose) administration which is around 22%, as against the target of achieving 50% coverage by January, set by Health Minister Dr Sudhakar.

The main reason for the poor percentage of booster dose administration was that the state had only Covaxin, and had run out of Covishield and heterologous Corbevax vaccines, stopping them from rolling out special vaccination camps. As there was no demand for vaccines, the state had not placed orders for fresh stocks of Covishield, which was administered to a majority of the state's population. However, as cases in China, US and other countries started soaring, people began expressing concern and complained about the non-availability of Covishield.

Health Commissioner D Randeep said the state has received 8 lakh Covishield doses and special vaccination drives will be held.

Naveen Bhat, State Mission Director, National Health Mission, said, "We will be holding a meeting with DCs of all districts on Wednesday, and distribute the vaccines. We have prepared an action plan for administering 8 lakh vaccines within this month. Special vaccination camps will start by Thursday or the weekend in Bengaluru and other districts."

Wide publicity will be given on the special camps so that people take the third jab, he added.

By the time we complete 75-80 per cent of the vaccines received, we will place an order for more vaccines, Naveen added.

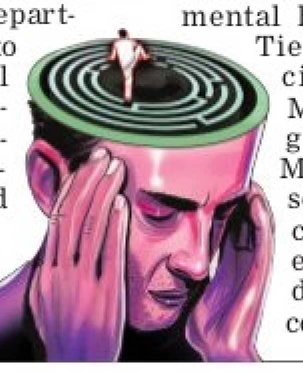
Hasty launch blamed for Tele-MANAS issues

NAMRATA SINDWANI @ Bengaluru

TELE Mental Health Assistance and Networking Across States (Tele-MANAS) portal launched by the Union government in October 2022 is not running to its full capacity in Karnataka. The hasty launch of the scheme is being cited as the reason for the poor response.

Karnataka has two cells, one in National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences (Nimhans) in Bengaluru and the other in Dharwad Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences (Dimhans).

Dr Rajani P, Deputy Director (Mental Health) said that as of now the services under the scheme are being offered from 10 am - 5 pm. However, in a span of two weeks the department is planning to make it functional 24x7. Dr Rahul, Assistant Professor, Department of Psychiatry, Nimhans, said that currently 20 counsellors have been appointed in both the cells. The recruitment process for hiring 40 more counsellors is in progress, he added. He opined that the initiative has not been entirely successful due to its hasty launch.



Since the launch, 1,136 calls have been attended through the portal.

Dr Rajani said they are taking several measures to popularise the initiative and create awareness among the people. She explained that in the long term, mental health experts will be available 24x7 for offering advice on personal and professional issues. The Tele-MANAS scheme was announced in the Union Budget 2022 as a two-Tier service. Tier-1 covers state Tele-MANAS cells, which include trained counsellors and mental health specialists. Tier-2 comprises specialists at District Mental Health Programme (DMHP)/ Medical College resources for physical consultation and/or eSanjeevani for audio-visual consultation.

Rider speeds up as victim tries to hang on BOTH Thontapur and Sahil, a resident of Nayandahalli, were taken to a hospital, where doctors conducted several tests on Thontapur including an X-Ray.

Dr Sunil Mallesh, Gayathri Hospital, where Thontapur was admitted, said the patient was kept in the ICU for observation. He did not sustain any serious injury and X-ray reports have ruled out fractures. The doctors also performed a CT scan to ensure that the patient did not suffer any internal injuries.

Thontapur said, "I would have forgiven him had he stopped and apologised. But, he was adamant though it was his mistake. The accident occurred due to his negligence as he was speaking over the phone and riding when he hit my vehicle."

He alleged that even after noticing him being dragged, the rider increased the speed of his two-wheeker and rode in a zig-zag manner so that he loses the grip. "But I held the handle firmly. He rode in such a way that he wanted to kill me or do as more harm as possible," Thontapur narrated, thanking the public who came to his rescue. The police have registered two FIRs in connection with the incident.

Richmond Road Fortis Hospital now offers tertiary care

Bengaluru: A 2.0 version of the Richmond Road Fortis Hospital was launched by Congress MP Nalapad Ahmed Haris on Tuesday. Calling it a "boutique" hospital, Haris said more such hospitals are needed to provide better accessibility to healthcare for all sections of society. Akshay Oleti, business head, Fortis Hospitals, said, "The hospital has been relaunched to provide a comprehensive treatment to all patients. Earlier, it catered only to mother and child care, but is now a 85-bed comprehensive tertiary care hospital." The new facility has wellness services in cardiology, neurology, general surgery, orthopaedics and paediatrics. Oleti said they aim to provide healthcare services for all patients from neonatal till geriatric stage.

PUNISH THOSE WHO LITTER: RETD JUDGE

Retired judge and president of NGT State Level Committee Justice Subhash B Adi has called for penalty on those who litter on road sides, footpaths and private places in Bengaluru. He was speaking at a workshop on dialogue and capacity-building on solid waste management rules organised by BBMP on Tuesday. He said the Waste Management Rules 2016 should be effectively implemented in the corporation limits and waste collection should be more streamlined. "For a city to be a beautiful, cleanliness should be given more importance. It is necessary to create public awareness," he said. "New layouts should be given approval only if enough space is reserved for solid waste management," said Justice Adi.

3 killed in separate accidents

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

TWO youth were killed and a woman sustained injuries after a speeding truck hit two two-wheelers on Magadi Road in Byadarahalli police station limits on Monday night.

The deceased are Ravikumar Yadav (28), a resident of Sunkadakatte who hailed from Ramanagara, and Vikas (20), a native of Andhra Pradesh, residing in Sumanahalli Both were working at a car showroom in Sunkadakatte.

Meet with PM sparks talks of BSY's poll role

May be asked to play more active part; top brass realises Hindutva alone won't yield results

BANSY KALAPPA @ Bengaluru

SENIOR BJP leader BS Yediyurappa's exclusive meeting with Prime Minister Narendra Modi for about 15 minutes has set off an avalanche of expectations among his, rather large, group of supporters in BJP.

Sources said that this is an indication of BJP's only mass leader Yediyurappa being organisationally resuscitated to lead the fight in the Assembly polls, which are just months away,

The former chief minister met Modi on the sidelines of the National Executive Meet in Delhi, where about 350 select leaders are participating.

The sources said this sudden development to recognise Yediyurappa and pull him out of semi-retirement started after the visits of Modi and Union Home Minister Amit Shah to Karnataka recently. The central leadership has recognised that it cannot trust party state president Nalin Kumar Kateel and Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai to deliver the state back to the party. This, considering regular surfacing of embarrassing scandals involving party leaders and Congress visibly gaining strength in Karnataka. Many party MLAs have also suggested that they need more active campaigning in their constituencies by Yediyurappa, the sources added.

Yediyurappa himself played down his meeting with Modi, saying he had sought an appointment with the latter to invite him for the inauguration of the Shivamogga Airport. But sources said the two discussed state politics and Yediyurappa was asked to take up a more active role in campaigning.

Sources said that without strategic changes, both within the party and government, it would be hard to expect a miracle, considering Karnataka has never returned a party to power in the last few decades.

While the group opposed to Yediyurappa had taken control of the party organisation and eased out several of his loyalists, it remains to be seen how the party will balance different power centres. The party has realised that Hindutva alone may not yield expected dividends and has been playing down the religion card over the last few weeks. There is also talk of an organisational revamp to ensure that the party is fighting fit for the polls, the sources said.

The resurgence of Yediyurappa may not be good news for Congress as the opposition party would have obviously benefited from his frustrations, however minor.

State gives nod for 'One Nation, One Uniform' for police force

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka government has given its in-principle consent to the 'One Nation, One Uniform' idea proposed by Prime Minister Narendra Modi recently. If implemented, all police personnel across the country will have a common uniform.

PM Modi had mooted the idea during a 'Chintan Shivir' held for home ministers of all states in October 2022. The idea is part of the PM's broader attempt to introduce a uniform set of policies across the country. While matters related to the police department are a state subject, the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) had sought the opinion of state governments on the proposal in December.

On Tuesday, the state home department wrote to the MHA giving details of uniforms worn by civil, traffic and armed policemen in the state and conveyed that Karnataka will abide by the common pattern of uniform for policemen as and when implemented.

"It will be very much appropriate to have a common uniform pattern for police officers in all states in the entire country as suggested by the Hon'ble Prime Minister. It will ensure uniformity in identity of law enforcing agencies throughout the country. Karnataka State Police will abide by the common pattern for police officers as and when implemented," the letter stated. Karnataka Home Minister Araga Jnanendra confirmed that the state has conveyed its in-principle consent for the proposal.

BJP hits out at Priyanka, to educate women on Cong's 'hollow' promise

In its desperation to come back to power, Congress is ready to make any number of false promises. Priyanka Gandhi has no personal identity or charisma and is claiming to be Naa Nayaki

Mangala Somashekar, Mysuru district BJP president

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mysuru

WITH AICC General Secretary Priyanka Gandhi Vadra unveiling Congress's plan of providing Rs 2,000 per month to women family heads under the Gruha Lakshmi scheme at Naa Nayaki convention, the BJP Mahila Morcha has decided to appeal to women not to get carried away by "hollow promises" of the opposition party.

Mahila Morcha activists will go door-to-door briefing people about unrealistic promises made by Congress ahead of the Assembly polls. They will also educate women about welfare and development programmes offered by central and state governments. BJP said the Congress' announcement amounts to "cheating" women and is nothing but an election gimmick. District BJP president Mangala Somashekar lashed out at Congress leaders for accusing BJP of not announcing any programmes for women.

"In its desperation to come back to power, Congress is ready to make any number of false promises. Priyanka Gandhi, though comes with the legacy of the Nehru family, has no personal identity or charisma and is claiming to be Naa Nayaki," she ridiculed.

She alleged that Congress has lost wherever Priyanka has campaigned. "It is unfortunate that Congress leaders in the stare are projecting her and this will end in their defeat," she added. BJP will tell women that former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi did not introduce programmes for women, but imposed Emergency, while Prime Minister Narendra Modi has constructed toilets for women and inducted 11 women in the cabinet. There are seven women governors in the country and a tribal woman has been made the President. The BJP government banned triple talaq to protect women's interests and former chief minister BS Yediyurappa introduced the Bhagyalakshmi Bond, proving that BJP is a pro-women government, she said.

Commission row has exposed BJP culture, conduct: HDK

Hubballi: Senior JDS leader HD Kumaraswamy said that mudslinging among BJP leaders over taking commission from contractors has exposed the party's culture and conduct. People have seen the rampant corruption that has been encouraged by the state government, and they have decided to vote the saffron party out of power, he said on Tuesday. Asked about the alleged connection of 'Santro' Ravi with top politicians and bureaucrats, he said, "Let's wait for what the CID finds out." The former CM was in Vijayapura district to launch the third phase of the party's Pancharathna Yatra, and was exuberant after seeing the response it has elicited. People are attending the yatra voluntarily to encourage the workers and bring the party back to power, he said. In the fourth phase, districts of Kittur Karnataka will be covered. Meanwhile, the reported meeting of Kumaraswamy with disgruntled leaders of BJP and Congress has sent ripples among political circles in Dharwad district. It is learnt that JDS leaders have met leaders of national parties who have got a wind that they might be denied tickets in the Assembly polls.

Cong rails against BJP on corruption, promises unkept

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Hospet

LAUNCHING a diatribe against the state government, Congress Karnataka incharge Randeep Singh Surjewala alleged that the BJP government is the most corrupt in the country.

Addressing a gathering at Congress Praja Dhwani rally in Hospet on Tuesday, he said, "People are fed up with this government. It's a government which has been mired in 40 per cent commission and PayCM controversies. Officials are committing suicide. Even if BJP forgets, we will always be with their family members. The Bommai government must be held responsible for these deaths."

"The CM post has been purchased for Rs 2,500 crore, which has been revealed by BJP leader Basangouda Patil Yatnal. He has also alleged that Minister (Murugesh)Nirani is corrupt. Another leader Yogishwar has called a central minister gunda, while 'Santro' Ravi is running the government and controllling transfers of top police officials," he said.

Former chief minister Siddaramaiah said the yatra will cover 22 districts. "This is to hear out the problems of people. All the promises made by our government in 2013 have been fulfilled. I openly invite CM Bommai to have a discussion on this. The BJP has made 600 promises in 2018, and how many have they met? The CM lies in front of the people," he said. "There is silt not allowing nearly 37 tmcft of water to be stored at Tungabhadra Dam, and this year, 200tmcft of water has been wasted. What happened to the alternative dam that was proposed by BJP? When we come to power, we will build an alternative reservoir. BJP has spent over Rs 45,000 crore for irrigation. We will earmark Rs 2 lakh crore for irrigation in Karnataka," he added.

KPCC chief DK Shivakumar said Congress leader Priyanka Gandhi has announced Rs 2,000 for women as she knows their hardships. "But to divert the attention of people, the government is releasing Sankranti ads even after the festival is over. Whatever Congress has built over the last 70 years, the BJP is selling it. Irrespective of cases, government is filing a B report. The Congress will reopen all cases," he added.

Priyank says internal survey predicts 130 seats for party

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Kalaburagi

AS per an internal survey conducted by Congress, the party will win 130 seats in the Assembly elections, claimed KPCC communications chief Priyank Kharge on Tuesday.

The Chittapur MLA said that with Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai himself claiming that his party will win 106 seats, Congress will certainly win and form the government.

Responding to allegations of BJP general secretary Ravikumar and other leaders that the Gruhalakshmi scheme of providing Rs 2,000 to women heads of families as unfeasible, Kharge said that when Congress was in power, it implemented more than 80 per cent of assurances enlisted in the manifesto.

"If we are voted to power, we will certainly implement it. Let BJP tell the public the assurances they had made and what has been implemented over the past three years," he said.

Mocking BJP for inviting Prime Minister Narendra Modi to distribute land title deeds to the Banjara community, he said saffron party leaders should explain why the projects meant for Kalyana Karnataka Region were withdrawn, and why the work for the Railway Division in Kalaburagi has not yet resumed.

If we are voted to power, we will certainly implement it (Gruha Lakshmi scheme). Let BJP tell public the assurances they had made and what has been implemented over the past three years

PM to open Narayanapura canal project tomorrow

RAMAKRISHNA BADSESHI @ Yadgir

THE extension, renovation and modernisation project of the Narayanpura Left Bank Canal at Upper Krishna Project (UKP) that will be inaugurated by Prime Minister Narendra Modi at Kodekal village of Hunasagi taluk in Yadgir district on Thursday will improve the fortunes of farmers in the irrigated areas.

The Narayanapura Dam was constructed across Krishna river downstream of Almatti Dam and commissioned in 1982. The reservoir irrigates around 5.40 lakh hectares of land in Vijayapura, Kalaburagi, Yadgir and Raichur districts through left and right bank canals and lift irrigation networks.

The Narayanpura Left Bank Canal is the main artery that supplies water to 4.50 lakh hectares to the command area, spread over perennially drought-prone districts of Kalaburagi, Yadgir and Vijayapura. Water is supplied through Hunasagi, Shahapur, Mudbal, Jewargi, Indi branch canals and Indi lift canal discharging 10,000 cusecs of water.

The new project is part of the central government's National Water Mission under the National Action Plan for Climate Change to conserve water, minimise wastage and ensure more equitable distribution.

A strategy has been worked out by the Krishna Bhagya Jala Nigama Ltd (KBJNL) to improve efficiency by 25 per cent in Narayanpur Left Bank Canal (NLBC), the official said. A pilot project has been taken up by the state government under KBJNL.

The NLBC, which has been in operation for the last 30 years, has developed certain deficiencies in delivering required quantum of water to its command area, because of damaged canal network system and canal slopes, seepage in canal network, absence of proper rotation system and management of flow of water, absence of proper regulating arrangements and farmers growing water-intensive crops. Around 1.5 lakh hectares are not getting the required quantity of water, experts said.

To address these issues, the extension, renovation and modernisation programme has been taken up, officials said. The project, at a cost of Rs 3,752.18 crore, has been cleared by the Technical Advisory committee of the Central Water Commission.

The revised cost estimate of the project is Rs 4,233.98 crore (AIBP works: Rs. 2405.84 crore + Non-AIBP: Rs.1828.14 crore). Of Rs 2,405.84 crore, central assistance is Rs 940.50 crore.

'Santro' Ravi faces fresh plaint from wife

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mysuru

A day after court extended his judicial custody, a fresh case has been booked against KS Manjunath alias 'Santro' Ravi at Devaraja police station limits. According to Devaraja police, 'Santro' Ravi has been booked under various sections of the IPC based on a complaint by his wife. In her complaint, his wife has stated that while she was going to Devaraja market, Ravi along with one Prakash had hit her scooter on November 22 and stole the cheque book which was kept in the vehicle.

She alleged they had used two cheques signed by her to withdraw money to cheat her. After the state government ordered a CID inquiry into the 'Santro' Ravi case, a team of four members arrived in Mysuru and were handed over the pertinent files by the Vijayanagar police. They also submitted an application before the court, seeking his custody. Sources said on Tuesday, the court has remanded him in CID custody.

Sec 144 forces Maha MP to skip MES rally

Belagavi: Members of Maharashtra Ekikaran Samiti (MES) on Tuesday paid homage to those who had died in the Karnataka-Maharashtra border dispute violence on Tuesday. MES leaders from Belagavi had invited Maharashtra MP Dhairyasheel Mane for the programme, but the district administration prohibited his entry as Belagavi DC Nitesh Patil issued orders under section 144 on Monday night. Mane is also the president of the border co-ordination committee of Maharashtra. MES leaders condemned Patil's decision and urged the Marathi-speaking population to participate in the 'Hutatma Din' programme.

CM urged to revoke amendment on KPTCL pension

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru:

KARNATAKA Small Scale Industries Association (KASSIA) urged Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai to withdraw the amendment to the Karnataka Electricity Reforms, to claim the government portion of pension contribution through tariff. "The government, by amending the Karnataka Electricity Reforms, has directed KPTCL to claim the government portion of pension contribution through tariff, by filing an application before the State Regulatory Commission," stated KN Narasimha Murthy, president, KASSIA.

KASSIA termed it as an "illogical and unwarranted recovery of an institutional liability from consumers". The government announced a latest downward revision of tariff only in Bescom and Mescom limits, this is a limited relief and is virtually nullified if a portion of pension contribution is recovered from consumers, it stated.

Murthy said micro and small-scale industries are reeling under many burdens imposed by the government. He said the consent fee levied by the Karnataka State Pollution Control Board (KSPCB) and property tax have been increased by over 100 times, which has no rationale. There has also been an increase in property tax, he said.

These multiple burdens will collectively hit the nearly 5,35,320 small-scale industries and over 15,147 HT consumers severely. "Our assessment is that quite a few of the micro and small scale industries might shut down temporarily or permanently or even consider shifting their operations. This will directly affect the livelihood of more than 1.5 crore family members of those working in MSMEs," he said.

Dalits accuse govt of fund diversion

Mysuru: Accusing the state government of diverting funds earmarked under Karnataka Scheduled Castes Sub- Allocation and Tribal Sub-Allocation Act, 2013 and Rules of 2017, the Dalit organisations demanded that section 7D of the Act be dropped. The special act was legislated to ensure budget allocation proportional to the SC/ST population. President of Dalit organisations, Manjunath, demanded section 7D be removed to put an end to diversion of funds, and added there has been a lack of political will.

Karnataka Congress roasts BJP over flight-gate

The ATR 72-600 aircraft was scheduled to take off at 10.05 am but was delayed by more than two hours.

Slamming Bengaluru South MP Tejasvi Surya for allegedly opening the emergency exit on an Indigo flight last month, Congress questioned the government over hiding the incident.

Karnataka Congress asked what was Surya's intention in opening the emergency exit. "Why did he apologise and go to the backseat? What disaster he wanted to create," it asked. It said this is what happens if children are allowed on planes. Terming it a "monkey's act", the opposition party ridiculed the MP, saying he wanted to have a dosa and took the "emergency exit". But why play a prank with the lives of fellow passengers, it wondered. KPCC president DK Shivakumar tweeted, "For a safe take-off and landing, always fly with Congress." AICC General Secretary in-charge of Karnataka, Randeep Singh Surjewala, tweeted, "The BJP VIP Brats! How dare the airline complain? Is it the norm for the BJP power elite? Ohhh! U can't ask questions about BJP's entitled VIP's!"

He said that service to Lord Ram is equal to service of the nation. He wondered when common people can work for the society, why can't politicians, who are rich and have a lot of resources at their disposal, do the same.

KERALA PLANS TO CULL TIGERS IN WAYANAD

Cites overpopulation of big cat and increasing attacks on people, mulls moving apex court

K S SREEJITH @T'Puram

THE Kerala government is considering a slew of remedial steps, ranging from sterilisation to culling of tigers, in Wayanad to contain the threat to human lives posed by the reported overpopulation of the big cat. Confirming this, Forest Minister A K Saseendran told TNIE, "The state is contemplating on moving the Supreme Court for culling tigers in a case in which Kerala is a party."

He said the forest department has already decided to move some of the tigers to the Periyar Tiger Reserve in Thekkady and is also considering the Parambikulam tiger reserve for the same.

"Though the department is also considering population control of tigers, experts have opined it's not possible. So, Kerala is contemplating on moving the Supreme Court to cull tigers, in a case in which Kerala is also a party," he said. Forest officials too expressed doubts on the practicality of methods to capture and sterilising a fully-grown tiger.

Culling of tigers was proposed at a high-level meeting held to discuss the tiger attacks in Wayanad. Though existing laws do not allow culling of wild animals, especially the ones in the schedules of the Wildlife (Protection) Act, the meeting decided to use all possible options. Tiger, the national animal, is in Schedule I of the Act.

Saseendran said West Bengal had passed a legislation to cull tigers in 2012. "However, an NGO moved the top court, which stayed the legislation in 2014. Kerala was a party in it. Until now, none has filed a review petition or sought lifting of the stay," he said, adding that Kerala is seriously considering legal intervention in the matter.

Environmental activists said killing a tiger is prohibited unless it is declared a man-eater. As per the National Tiger Conservation Authority guidelines, killing of aberrant tigers is permitted only as a last resort.

As per the census data of Periyar and Parambikulam reserve available with the department, the numbers of tigers there is low and the forest area is large.

States that proposed culling of animals

Five states had submitted proposals for culling various animals. They included Maharashtra and Goa, which sought the nod for killing peacocks, the national bird, and West Bengal, that sought permission for culling elephants. The Centre has not given the nod to the proposals.

108 girls take ill in Shivamogga

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Shivamogga

AS many as 108 students of various government-run residential schools and hostels for girls in the city and its outskirts were admitted to District McGann Hospital on Monday evening and Tuesday with complaints of vomiting and gastric infection.

Officials, however, said that food poisoning is the reason for the incident. Meanwhile, alleging that inferior quality food was served at the yogathon event on Sunday, various student unions demanded that action be taken against the organisers.

Ninety-two students of Moulana Azad Residential School at Melina Hanasawadi were admitted to the hospital with complaints of vomiting and gastric infection after eating lunch at the school. Later, students from two more hostels were taken ill with similar complaints.

District health officer Rajesh Suragihalli told The New Indian Express that the food sample has been sent for tests. Asked if the food served at Yogathon was the reason, the DHO said, "There were more than 10,000 students there. Along with food, buttermilk was also served. Some students might have taken buttermilk sachets to drink later. They fell sick after consuming buttermilk the next day. We are probing this angle too," he said.

Man fakes death to claim ₹6cr insurance

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Medak

IT is like a plot straight out of a crime fiction novel. A government employee faked his own death to claim the insurance amount of ₹ 6 crore but was caught in the end. The investigation took several twists and turns after the death of a person in a car that went up in flames was reported to the police on January 9. Based on the evidence, the police arrested the government employee in Medak district on Tuesday.

According to police, Maloth Dharma had planned the crime about six months ago. He took an insurance policy for Rs 6 crore and paid the premium every month regularly.

Dharma is an assistant section officer in the state secretariat in Hyderabad. He hails from Bhimla Thanda of Venkatapur village in the district.

On January 7, he went to the Thanda in a car by hiring a driver and left on January 8, after telling his wife that he was going to Hyderabad.

On January 9, a car went up in flames near the Thanda. The police rushed to the spot and found the charred remains of a body in the car.

They made inquiries and came to the preliminary conclusion that the dead person was Dharma and accordingly they registered a case. His wife and his younger brother had identified the body as that of Dharma.

However, the police, based on suspicion, kept watch on the movements of Dharma's wife and tracked her phone. Three days ago Dharma called his wife and advised her to get a death certificate from the gram panchayat office and submit it for a claim in the insurance company.

The police found the development fishy and detained Dharma's wife and his younger brother and interrogated them. They then confessed that on January 9 they made a show that Dhama died in the car blaze. After faking his death, Dharma fled to Pune

Dharma has been taken into custody and is being interrogated.

DAVOS IN SHADOW OF RECESSION, GROWING DISPARITY

The World Economic Forum (WEF), the annual conclave attended by CEOs and national leaders to assess where Planet Earth is headed, opened in Davos, Switzerland, on Monday under the long shadow of an imminent recession. A WEF survey of economists showed two-thirds expect a global recession this year, with some 18% considering it "extremely likely". Another PwC survey of CEOs released on Monday pointed in the same direction, with 73% forecasting global economic growth to decline over the next 12 months. This is the most pessimistic outlook in a decade, PwC said, and quite the opposite of the optimism we saw in 2021 and 2022.

Meanwhile, international charity Oxfam, which has been underlining growing inequality for the last few years, stirred the pot further at Davos, claiming the world's richest 1% had grabbed nearly two-thirds of the $42 trillion in new wealth created since the pandemic kicked off in 2020. This is almost twice what was earned by the 99% at the bottom of the pyramid, the 'Survival of the Richest' report said. The divisions at the Forum were further exacerbated with climate change activists led by Greta Thunberg giving a 'cease and desist' notice to big oil companies to "immediately stop opening any new oil, gas or coal extraction sites, and stop blocking the clean energy transition we all so urgently need."

Considering the heat waves and flooding the world has seen, one can expect climate change to be big on the agenda. However, a second round of recession in one decade will be the more dominant issue as corporations and the rich nations count the cost on their economies and businesses. For India, which is registering 6.4% growth, it is not recession but poverty and the increasing disparity that is clamouring for attention. The Oxfam report highlights India's top 1% owned more than 40.5% of its total wealth in 2021, and in 2022 the number of billionaires in the country increased to 166 from 102 in 2020. However, in tax collection, the poor pay the price. About 64% of the total GST came from the bottom 50% of the population, while only 4% came from the top 10%. A mere 2% tax on the country's billionaires may be sufficient to fund India's nutrition programme for two years. To set this right, the Union finance minister should consider a more equitable tax regime in the upcoming Budget.

POLITICS OF FREEBIES ENTERS KARNATAKA

The battle of poll promises has begun ahead of the April/May assembly polls in Karnataka. The promises, in the form of freebies, are being floated by the ruling BJP and the challenger, the Congress. Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai announced special financial assistance for women to take care of their households, which will likely be included in the state budget scheduled on February 17. It will likely be up to ₹3,000 per month "depending on calculations" and working out its resource mobilisation aspects.

The Congress, on its part, has announced 200 units of free power to every household if voted to power in the state. On Monday, AICC general secretary Priyanka Gandhi Vadra at the 'Naa Nayaki' convention of the party, further announced ₹2,000 per month for the woman head in every household in the state if voted to power. It is estimated that 200 units of free power and ₹2,000 per month deposited into the accounts of every woman head of household would come up to a whopping ₹45,000 crore cost per year. That, too, with the debt-trapped electricity supply companies being supported by ₹21,000 crore, which includes ₹13,000 crore raised against guarantees by the state government. The BJP promise, if kept, could cost up to ₹54,000 crore a year. The expenditure on freebies could derail existing programmes and affect planned ones for want of funds. The announcements attempt to mirror the Aam Aadmi Party's (AAP) model of providing freebies in Delhi. However, although it helped the party retain power for a second term in 2020, the AAP-ruled government was faced with huge costs forcing a shortage of funds for essential civic amenities. That appears to be lost on those making political promises of freebies in Karnataka.

That these freebies are being announced much ahead of the respective parties' poll manifestos indicates a degree of desperation in both—the BJP, with anxiety over retaining power, and the Congress, smarting under its recent victory in Himachal Pradesh, looking to regain its hold in the South. These promises of freebies, even if met, are not likely to sustain. Instead, convincing the electorate on how issues like the prevailing divisive communal environment, unemployment, education, ecological sustenance and security for farmers, women and minorities are addressed could bear fruit. The manifestos could accommodate that.

QUICK TAKE

ENCOURAGE GOOD SAMARITANS

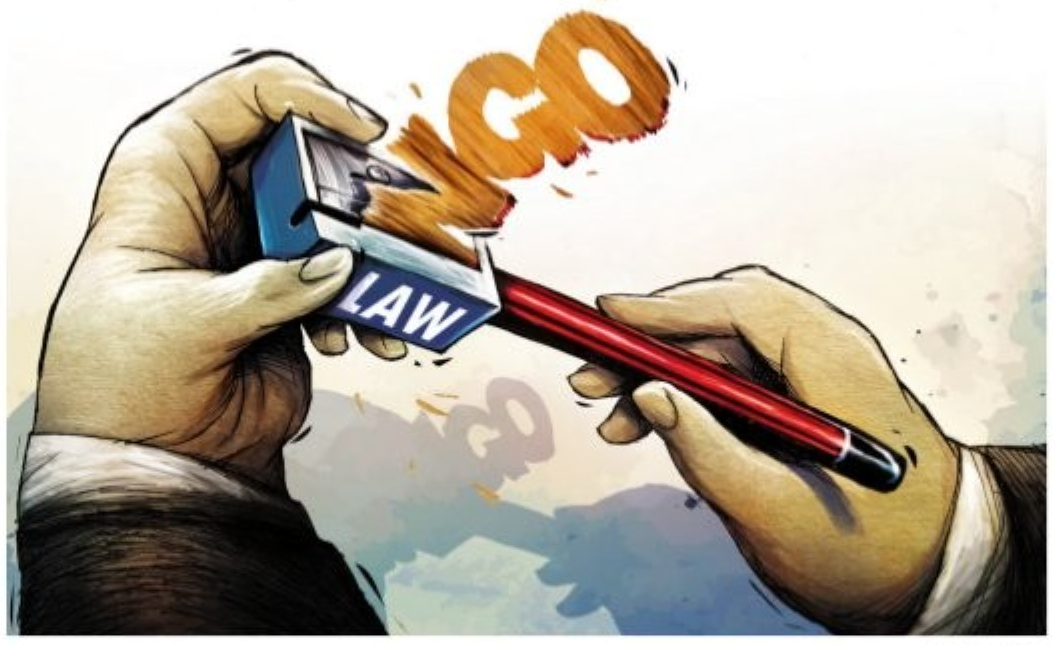
Whether hit-and-runs or stabbings in daylight, eyewitnesses are hard to find. People record crimes on their phones but are instinctively unwilling to inform the police. The recent road rage and an ASI's stabbing in Delhi are recent examples. Good Samaritans are rare because they fear harassment if they help the victims or share evidence. Hospitals mostly ignore guidelines banning them from holding the rescuers responsible. Fear of the police and courts discourages eyewitnesses. The government must have an SOP to encourage them. An eyewitness is lost whenever a person prefers recording a crime and forwarding it to phoning the police.

India hosting Civil Society 20 is important because the authentic civil society concept in the country is intertwined with the spirit of voluntarism

RESTORING THE THIRD SECTOR'S CREDIBILITY

VINAY SAHASRABUDDHE

President, ICCR and senior BJP leader



SOUMYADIP SINHA

All over the world, the influence of civil society organisations, popularly known as NGOs, is increasing. However, their credibility seems to be going south. Undoubtedly, this is disheartening but not altogether unexpected. Not too long ago in 2018, a report by Carnegie Endowment for International Peace succinctly pointed out how civil society is perceived globally. The report stressed on some key observations and the most important among them were:

a) That civil society organisations are self-appointed rather than elected, and thus do not represent the popular will.

b) That civil society organisations receiving foreign funding are accountable to external rather than domestic constituencies, and advance foreign rather than local agendas.

c) That civil society groups are elite actors who are not representative of the people they claim to represent. Critics point to the foreign education backgrounds, high salaries, and frequent foreign travel of civic activists to portray them as out of touch with the concerns of ordinary citizens and only working to perpetuate their own privileged lifestyle.

In a changing world where crass individualism is hugely contributing towards the fragmentation of society, the spirit of voluntarism that presupposes effective collective action was bound to decline. Seen against this backdrop, India's presidency of C20 (Civil Society 20)—an engagement group of the G20—provides us an opportunity to influence global discourse around civil societies and help the 'third sector' restore its credibility.

To start with, Indian philosophy serves as an anchor for our approach to voluntarism. The Bhagavad Gita tells us that there are at least four prerequisites to accomplish any mission besides good fortune which comes at the end. These include adhishthan or philosophy, a karta or a doer who leads from the front, a variety of programmes and lastly, diverse efforts in multiple ways. This precludes any kind of straight jacketing. This manifests our core democratic principle of celebrating diversities and pluralism, and our foundational understanding of the doctrine "let a thousand flowers bloom".

India hosting C20 is also important because the authentic civil society concept in India is intertwined with the spirit of voluntarism. The Indian worldview was always centred around the idea of an autonomous society. To put it bluntly, the universally popular notion of NGOs is incongruent with the Indian ethos as it puts government at the centre and not society. In India, collective action has always been the key to emancipation. Our civilisational culture had always recognised individuality. We knew "pinde pinde matirbhinna", but then we also realised the importance of "Om saha navavatu, saha nau bhunaktu, saha viryam karavavahai…"

Our basic philosophical approaches have always struck a fine balance between individualism and collective spirit. It is because of this that Indian civil societies traditionally aspire to become movements—of the people, by the people, for the people—and not fiefdoms of individuals.

Voluntary work, as envisioned by the Indian philosophy, is inspired by a sense of indebtedness towards society at large. Our ancient scriptures like the Upanishads also explain the importance of daan as duty and as part of repaying societal debt. Our scriptures also refer to shram-daan, anna-daan, vastra-daan and gyan-daan.

Transformational social work carried out by Savitribai Phule, Mahatma Gandhi, Ishwar Chandra Vidyasagar, B R Ambedkar, Vinoba Bhave, Eknath Ranade, Baba Amte, Sunderlal Bahuguna, Nanaji Deshmukh, among others are important examples of these teachings.

Notably, India's freedom struggle, too, was a scintillating example of voluntarism. People voluntarily participated and there were several avenues for them to associate with the struggle. Importantly, Tilak, Gandhi, Ambedkar and Savarkar—all practised law, ran newspapers, and established organisations for nationalistic education, public awakening and popular mobilisation. However, what was strikingly common among most of the key freedom fighters was their emphasis on practising what they were all preaching. This had largely prevented hypocrisy overtaking voluntarism.

Civil society organisations in the development sector, more commonly known as NGOs, gained prominence when implementation of the ideal welfare state even under a democratic government continued to be challenging. Wherever and whenever government organisations failed, NGOs made an entry. Unlike bureaucrats and government functionaries, NGOs were considered to be more driven by idealism and commitment. But more often than not, this proved to be a chimera. NGOs apparently became ultra-professional and excessively business-like. With this, the spirit of voluntarism dissipated, a sense of mission became a thing of the past, and passion became short-lived. Some NGOs became family-controlled businesses.

For their very survival, some of the NGOs started looking for issues and became—what PM Modi had rightly described—Andolan Jeevi. In the process, the touch with both team members and ground realities vanished. All this resulted in the loss of credibility of many voluntary organisations. The public at large started doubting their intentions as transparency, democratic functioning and accountability became a far cry in many cases.

Concerns about the very credibility of civil society and NGOs is a universal phenomenon. Issues like human rights, sustainability, gender justice, etc. are no doubt universally important. Civil society is supposed to find solutions to all of them. But, when legitimate concerns are raised about the solution-finder itself, Indian civil society organisations must come forward and provide models where unethical practices masquerading as professionalism are prevented from eating into the vitals of purity of purpose and spirit of voluntarism.

To make this happen, it would be better if C20 host India also deliberates on saving the saviour, that is, the civil society organisations, before they continue to lose credibility. A self-regulatory mechanism that defines a healthy relationship between civil society and the government and lays down clearly stated dos and don'ts, thereby setting high standards of democratic functioning and accountability, could certainly be a way to go. To start with, C20 can perhaps do well to hold a mirror to civil society and come out with a 'Universal Charter of Reforms' for itself.

TO SIR WITHOUT LOVE, AND TOWARDS A ROBOTIC SOCIETY

C P SURENDRAN

Poet, novelist, and screenplay writer. His latest novel is One Love and the Many Lives of Osip B

It's only too clear that one of the collateral damages of the ongoing gender war is language and, so, thought. Kerala, among the first Indian states in life indices and literacy, is at the forefront of the gender plurality and correctness movement. Indeed, last year, at least one school in Kerala enforced, to great public acclaim, unisex uniform: girls can and must wear trousers, hitherto the sartorial legacy of the male pupil. This news was greeted with tears of joy by all.

If indeed this transition was a step in the right direction, why not break even more ground by making boys wear skirts? Surely, unisex fashion cuts both ways? Could it be because the idea of correctness, in general, aspires to masculine symbols? That the skirt can only evolve to trousers but not the other way around? The parity one seeks with the dominant gender can be interpreted to be a way of actually endorsing it.

Earlier, the flashily progressive Vijayan government had mulled making boys and girls sit together in the classroom instead of segregating them. This was a painless populist reform and could be enforced without investment. Except that minorities, especially Muslims, protested. This community is an ally of the Left Front in power in Kerala. The idea was dropped.

Last week, the Kerala Child Rights Commission proposed to the state government that 'Sir' be removed from classroom discourse. Their recommendation was to replace 'Sir' with 'Teacher', a gender-neutral noun. More about this a moment later.

We tend to watch with dread the trend of comedians being silenced. But how does one reconcile the fact of a whole sensorium being built in place by the politically correct in daily transactions? What's humour/thought without offence?

One of the greatest stand-up comedians of all time, an international pioneer, in fact, is Kunjan Nambiar (early 18th century). He would spare no one in the thronging audience. The bodies before him were the material of his great rap. Nambiar would die of imposed silence and starvation if he were around in Kerala today.

Simple adjectives like tall, thin, fat, dark, and sexy have taken on dark tones of oppression, even abuse. There are nouns and verbs which, if used to qualify a man or woman, would invite widespread condemnation. There have been additions to the language as well. Here is an official list that adds to the new prescriptive way of life:

He/She – Zie, Sie, Ey, Ve, Tey, E
Him/Her – Zim, Sie, Em, Ver, Ter, Em
His/Her – Zir, Hir, Eir, Vis, Tem, Eir
His/Hers – Zis, Hirs, Eirs, Vers, Ters, Eirs

> In Kerala, there have been suicides by transgenders after transition, the surgical process of which is supported and subsidised by the government. But if you look around, the counselling centres everywhere seem to actively encourage transition

A few months ago, the Oscar-nominated actor Ellen Page transitioned through surgery into Elliot Page. He is now at peace, he says. Perhaps what he means is that he is less at war—with himself and the world: We are so distraught these days that we mistake the day we are less suicidal to be happy ones.

Professor Jordan Peterson, a Canadian academic, clinical psychologist, and best-selling author, trashed Page's transition as self-mutilation. Professor Jordan believes there is no such thing as a transgender since biologically, no gender can be explained beyond XX (female) or XY (male).

To complicate matters, the professor is an evangelist of free speech as well. In 2016, when the Canadian government advocated legislation (Bill C-16) to make it compulsory for all to use gender-neutral pronouns, Professor Peterson was one of the very few voices to protest against the measure, saying the Bill amounted to the inhibition of free speech. In the last fortnight, Professor Peterson has been under stricture from the Ontario College of Psychologists to undergo training in social media communication, failing which he risks cancelling his license of practice.

Elliot Page and Peterson show how complicated the evolving world of genders is and how intertwined it is with the human gift of thought. How does one speak or think anything worthwhile without giving offence—not abuse—to someone somewhere? In a Stalinist future of correctness, when society as a whole willingly submits to the mass surveillance of body and language, our thoughts can be so self-censored as not to be born at all. The arts will change. Because the way we look at them would have changed.

In Kerala, there have been suicides by transgenders after transition, the surgical process of which is supported and subsidised by the government. But if you look around, the counselling centres everywhere seem to actively encourage transition rather than pointing out the dangers of violent alterations of the body. There is no survey or study on the dysfunctions and dysphoria post such irretrievable operations.

Back to the Kerala classrooms. 'Sir' is a form of polite address, as is Madam. A Teacher is a function. As is a Welder. Or an Electrician. Or a Scavenger. To address someone as Sir or Madam represents a feeling—of respect—as a human being. To call someone by his or her profession is a robotic/ChatGPT thing to do. If the idea is to empower children against existing social biases, the least the Children's Rights Commission or other state apparatuses could do is conduct debates among students so they think before they talk the new language. In our anxiety to appear progressive, the fundamentals—such as civil debates and discussions—are exactly the things lost in the transition.

TN's priorities must change

Apropos of Sethu is all politics, no chance for revival (Jan 17). The state government will do well to construct more dams and lakes to conserve rainwater across Tamil Nadu. Every year, plenty of rainwater is getting wasted. Cordial relations with the Centre will help overcome these issues. An Assembly resolution on the Sethu project will create more problems for the state than solving any.

Every life matters

Apropos of Development and the price that comes with it (Jan 17) by Harish Bijoor. This must be taken up with a sense of seriousness. Safe working standards are not new to us, but we like to bypass them for silly reasons. The column has correctly highlighted the workflow based on payments. Ultimately, every life matters.

Sivakumar Nair, Palakkad

Public safety is key

Columnist Harish Bijoor asks many valid questions regarding the Bengaluru Metro pillar accident, which took the lives of a mother and her toddler. As he states, if the construction work happened at night or if the roads were completely shut, the accident could have been prevented. Heavy-duty construction work must prioritise public safety over meeting deadlines.

A better solution

The AAP government in Delhi pointing out that the L-G has no say in the issue of training teachers in Finland may be true. But what has also to be seen is whether teachers have to only be trained there. Wouldn't it be better if the trainers came here and trained more teachers; won't that also be less expensive?

K R Jayaprakash Rao, Mysuru

Pay heed to Joshimath lesson

Apropos of Subsidence lesson: Other Joshimaths in the offing (Jan 17). The Central government needs to get to the bottom of it so that subsidence in other hilly regions can be avoided in the future. The Centre and the states must chalk out a clear plan to ensure that corrective measures are taken without putting the lives of locals at risk.

Covid not yet over

Apropos of Mask mandate, social distancing make a comeback in Kerala (Jan 17). Although the hard times that Covid put the world through are still fresh in everyone's minds, many believe it is over. Our carelessness will pay us back. Better safe than sorry isn't it?

NREGA digital attendance driving women out

With no means to buy a smart phone & limited access to internet, women workforce are dropping out from scheme

PREETHA NAIR @New Delhi

SARDA Devi, a Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA) mate, or supervisor has not been to work since January 1 as she doesn't own a smart phone. The 40-year-old has been working as a MGNREGA mate for the past 10 years in Barwadih village of Jharkhand's Latehar district.

With the government mandating digital attendance for all MGNREGA workers nationwide, thousands of women like Devi have been forced to drop out from the scheme as they don't have access to smart phones to register attedance.

The new government directive has made it mandatory for workmates to register the attendance of all NREGA workers through the National Mobile Monitoring App (NMMS) app. Though the government rolled out the new feature in May last year, it was implemented in January this year.

"A smart phone costs a lot as I hardly earn ₹7,000 - ₹8,000 a year. Now, I have to buy a phone and resume work somehow," says Sarda, who is the bread earner of her family. As per the latest figures of the Ministry of Rural Development, women make up 57.8 percent of the total workforce of the scheme.

It is one step forward and two steps backward for women, who constitute more than half of the NREGA workforce, points out activists. As several state governments encourage the participation of women in the workforce by deploying them as mates in work sites, digital attendance will be a major setback for women's empowerment, says Apurva Gupta of NREGA Sangharsh Morcha.

"With this policy measure, women are being excluded from the workforce. Already in many places, women are being replaced by males as they lack digital literacy and access to devices. Mostly, female workers do not have a 4G connected smart phone, hence they become ineligible to be mates," says Gupta.

For Mina Devi, working as a mate in Jharkhand's Kundri village, capturing digital attendance is a tedious process and she says many women in her village dropped out as they don't have phones. As a mate, she has to click the pictures of the 70-odd workers on the NMMS app on her mobile phone and depute work daily. As attendance is marked twice daily, morning (9 am-11 am) and afternoon (2-4 pm), she is struggling to cope with the changes.

"I have four small children and I have to walk 4 km daily to reach the site. Earlier, I used to work on flexible timings, and now I am not able to manage between work and home," she said. Former rural development secretary Jugal Mohapatra agreed that the flexibility of working hours has been the key factor behind NREGA's popularity.

"What's the rationale behind enforcing digital attendance? It's not meant to be a 10 to 5 job and it benefitted women more. It's an anti-worker measure," said Mohapatra.

In Latehar district, NREGA work is on hold in many places as women mates are not equipped with smart phones, said James Herenj of NREGA watch. Several districts in Bihar will soon go on strike against the digital attendance, says Sanjay Sahni, a prominent NREGA activist in Bihar's Muzaffarpur. "Out of the 4,000 workers in our district, hardly 2,000 were able to mark their attendance since January 1," he told this daily.

What's the rationale behind enforcing digital attendance? It's not meant to be a 10 to 5 job and it benefitted women more. It's an anti-worker measure

Jugal Mohapatra, former rural development officer

LEAVING WOMEN BEHIND

Central govt makes digital attendance mandatory for MGNREGA workers on January 1

As per MRD, nearly 15 crore beneficiaries have enrolled under NREGA scheme

Around 57.8% of women constituted the total NREGA workforce during 2022-23, an all time high

Activists fear exclusion of women from the workforce as they don't have access to smart phones or means to buy one

Timings are not flexible. Women in remote villages have to walk several kilometres to register their attendance twice daily which is not feasible

Army to get first lot of Amethi-made AK-203 in March

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

THE production of advanced AK-203 assault rifles has started in India and the first batch will be delivered to Indian Army soon, Alexander Mikheev, Director General of Rosoboronexport confirmed on Tuesday. The Indian Army chief had a few days ago said that the first batch of rifles would be delivered by March.

Mikheev said, "Korwa Ordnance Factory in Amethi, Uttar Pradesh, has produced the first batch of 7.62 mm Kalashnikov AK-203 assault rifles. The beginning of deliveries to Indian Army is expected soon. At the same time, the factory's capacity makes it possible to fully equip the personnel of other law enforcement agencies in India with AK-203 assault rifles, which, due to their high adaptability, are suitable for various operators. In addition, the joint venture will be able to export its products to third countries."

India is the first country to produce the AK-200-series assault rifles which, as per the company, have retained all the advantages of the traditional AK scheme, including reliability, durability and ease of maintenance.

At the same time, it fully meet the latest requirements for firearms in the world in terms of ergonomics and the ability to mount high-tech additional equipment.

The Indian Army will receive all rifles in 128 months. As per Army Chief General Manoj Pande, "Out of 6 lakh AK-203 odd rifles, we will receive 70,000 of them in 32 months. Whereas, the first batch of 5,000 rifles will be delivered by March this year." These 70,000 rifles would have indigenous content ranging from 5-17 per cent and the remainder will be entirely indigenous, the chief had said. The AK-203 rifles would replace the ageing Indian Small Arms System (INSAS).

A contract for procurement of 6,01,427 assault rifle AK-203 was signed in December 2021 between Ministry of Defence and Indo-Russian Rifles Private Limited (IRRPL)- a joint venture between India, represented by the Defence PSUs-Advanced Weapons & Equipment India Limited (AWEIL) and Munitions India Limited (MIL) and Russia, represented by Rosoboronexport (RoE) & Concern Kalashnikov (CK), in the share holding of 50.5% and 49.5% respectively. These rifles will be produced by IRRPL at Korwa, Uttar Pradesh.

"With the launch of series production of Kalashnikov AK-203 assault rifles, high-quality, convenient and modern small arms will begin to enter service with India's defence and law enforcement agencies. The model combines excellent ergonomics, adaptability to different shooters and high performance characteristics, it is one of the best assault rifles in the world," said Sergey Chemezov, General Director of Rostec.

The company plans to ensure 100 per cent localization of the production of AK-203 rifles in India.

Replace 'rajniti' with 'social principles' for greater outreach: PM

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @
New Delhi

THE upshot of Prime Minister Narendra Modi's more-than-an-hour-long speech on the concluding day of the two-day BJP National Executive Committee's brainstorming on Tuesday was his fervent appeal to the party to build 'Ek Bharat, Shrestha Bharat.' The PM told party leaders to convert the ongoing 'Amrit Kaal' (golden year) into 'mehnat-kaal' (era of hard work) and herald an era of 'samajik-niti' (social principles) in place of 'rajniti' (politics) through wider outreach connecting the people on the ground.

"India's best time is on the horizon," said the PM while delivering the valedictory speech. He described the BJP as a social movement, saying BJP was no longer a mere political movement. "It is a social movement. Therefore, we must herald an era of 'samajik-niti' in place of only 'rajniti,'", Modi said, emphasizing the need for mainstreaming of border villages and strengthening the party's reach across villages and booths. Maharashtra deputy CM and member of the party's parliamentary committee Devendra Fadnavis shared what the PM spoke at the meeting.

"The PM asked the party leaders to move in top gear to reach out to the people," said Fadnavis. "Around 400 days are left for the Lok Sabha polls, so meet people not only for votes but for bringing more and more changes for them", Fadnavis quoted the PM.

Modi told the meeting that leaders should reach out to every section of society, including minorities such as the Bohras, Pasmandas and Sikhs, without electoral consideration. The PM's meeting with former Karnataka CM BS Yediyurappa, who is an influential leader of the Lingayatas sparked speculation about a political churning likely to take place in the state ahead of the assembly polls.

Sources said the PM-Yediyurappa meeting lasted around 15 minutes. "Not much is known about what happened in the meeting, but the buzz is about the wider role of Yediyurappa within the organisation ahead of the polls this year," said a senior party functionary. Yediyurappa was recently elevated to the party's apex decision-making body. He has been working actively across the state after being included in the parliamentary committee.

The BJP has launched Mission South for both assembly and LS elections. The party's prime focus is on retaining power in Karnataka. The strategy expected to be adopted for Karnataka with Yediyurappa as a major participant will be crucial for the other state polls this year followed by the general election next year.

India's best time is on the horizon. It is a social movement. Therefore, we must herald an era of 'samajik-niti' in place of only 'rajniti'

CHINA LIFTS HOLD, MAKKI NOW A GLOBAL TERRORIST

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

IN a big diplomatic win for India, the UN Security Council ISIL and Al Qaida Sanctions Committee listed Abdul Rehman Makki, the brother-in-law of Lashkar-e-Taiba (LeT) leader Hafiz Saeed, as a global terrorist.

This happened after China removed its hold on a joint India-US proposal to blacklist the Pak-based deputy chief of LeT. Decisions to list individuals and entities under the sanctions committee are made through consensus.

India had made listings of Pakistan-based terrorists a top priority of its UNSC tenure during 2021-22. Even though the successful listing comes just after India left the Council, this was a culmination of long standing and persistent efforts made over the last several months, along with partner countries. A total of five names were submitted by India for designation under 1267 during 2022. Abdul Rehman Makki (LeT), Abdul Rauf Asghar (JeM), Sajid Mir (LeT), Shahid Mahmood (LeT), Talha Saeed (LeT).

Each of these five names was initially placed on technical hold by China, while all other 14 members of the Council agreed to their listing.

Makki's case was submitted on June 1, 2022 by India with US joining as a co-designating state. China placed a technical hold on 16 June 2022 and after the six-month period again renewed its hold in mid-December.

We welcome the decision of the UN Security Council's to list LeT terrorist Abdul Rehman Makki... who... has occupied various leadership roles in LeT, including raising funds for the organisation

DGCA advises airlines to formulate own policies on carrying pets in cabin

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

THE DGCA has advised all the airlines to formulate and prominently display the policy of "Carriage of Pets in Aircraft Cabin" on their respective websites. "Within the ambit of said Aeronautical Information Chart (AIC) airlines are permitted to formulate their own procedures for carriage of pets or live animals in the cabin as the final responsibility of safety of flight is with the Pilot-In-Command of the flight," according to the DGCA.

Under rule 24C of Aircraft Rules 1937, the DGCA has permitted the airlines to carry pets by air to, from and within India, animals, birds, and reptiles in an aircraft subject to the observance of the general conditions as specified in AIC 9 of 1985.

"It is brought to the attention of all concerned that ICAO has not yet issued any guidelines with regard to carriage of pets in passenger compartments. The Federation Aviation Authority has permitted their airlines to have their own respective policies for carriage of pets in cabin. The aviation safety regulators worldwide have not issued any specific policy for carriage of pets inside the cabin and they have allowed their airlines to develop respective procedures for the same," according to the DGCA.

Rijiju clarifies Centre's stand, says govt doesn't want its nominee in collegium

SHRUTI KAKKAR @New Delhi

UNION Law Minister Kiren Rijiju chose the early hours of January 17 to seek to clarify the government's stand on the collegium, saying the Centre does not want its nominee in the collegium to select judges for higher judicial posts.

This came amid the confusion created by reports stating that the Centre had written to the CJI asking for government representatives in the collegiums. "How can a govt's nominee be part of the collegium? Some people make comments without knowing the facts! The Constitution Bench of hon'ble SC itself had asked to restructure the MoP (memorandum of procedure). Search-cum-evaluation Committee (SEC) is envisaged for preparation of panel of eligible candidates," Rijiju tweeted.

With the Law Minister writing to CJI DY Chandrachud seeking the inclusion of representatives of Union government in the SEC for the appointment of judges in SC and HCs, Rijiju on Monday had tweeted that the letter was a "precise follow-up" of SC's direction which was passed by Constitution bench while striking down NJAC. The Law Minister in his tweet said, "This is a precise follow-up action on the direction of SC constitution bench while striking down the National Judicial Appointment Commission Act. The SC Constitution Bench had directed to restructure the MoP of the collegium system. The contents in the letter to hon'ble CJI are exactly in conformity with the observations and directions of the SC constitution bench." Rijiju said convenient politics "is not advisable, especially in the name of judiciary."

New digital personal data protection bill to be introduced in House soon: Govt to SC

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

THE Centre has told the Supreme Court that the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology has formulated a draft of the Digital Personal Data Protection Bill, 2022 which it intends to introduce in Parliament "at the earliest." The bill aims to lay down a comprehensive legal framework governing digital personal data protection in India, said the Ministry.

"MeitY initiated a stakeholder consultation exercise on the draft Bill, inviting comments from the public on Nov 18, 2022, the last date for receipt of which was Jan 2, 2023. MeitY is in the process of collating and analysing the feedback and suggestions received to take the draft Bill forward.

The MeitY, subject to fulfilment of procedural requirements, intends to introduce the bill in Parliament at the earliest," said the Centre's affidavit.

The Centre's response has been filed in the plea filed by Karmanya Singh and Shreya Sethi which is currently being heard by a constitution bench which alleged that WhatsApp would share users' personal data with its parent Facebook, violated users' right to privacy.

MeITY in the affidavit has further said that the Ministry to protect personal data of users has also framed IT (Reasonable Security Practices and Procedures and Sensitive Personal Data of Information) Rules, 2011. "The Central government, in exercise of its powers under the IT Act, 2000 has made the Information Technology (Intermediary Guidelines and Digital Media Ethics Code) Rules, 2021. These provide, inter alia, that an intermediary, including a social media intermediary, shall observe due diligence as specified in the rules while discharging its duties," said the affidavit.

The Digital Personal Data Protection Bill is the latest attempt by the Bharatiya Janata Party-led government to enact the country's first data privacy law, after a previous version, introduced in Parliament in December 2019, was dropped in August 2022.

No truck with Varun ideology: Rahul

My family has a thought system, I can't visit RSS office: Cong leader

HARPREET BAJWA @ Chandigarh

Videograb of a man rushing towards Congress leader Rahul Gandhi to try and embrace him, which raised security concerns, during the party's Bharat Jodo Yatra, in Punjab's Hoshiarpur district on Tuesday. Rahul took it sportingly, describing it as over-excitement of the individual and not a security breakdown | PTI

CONGRESS leader Rahul Gandhi has ruled out the possibility of reaching out to his cousin and Bharatiya Janata Party MP Varun Gandhi, saying that he can meet and hug his cousin "but cannot accept" his ideology.

"My ideology does not match his ideology. I can never go to an RSS office. You can slit my throat, but I will not go. My family has an ideology, it has a thought system," Rahul said at a presser on the sidelines of his Bharat Jodo Yatra.

Varun Gandhi is the BJP MP from Pilibhit in Uttar Pradesh. and the son of Sanjay and Maneka Gandhi. "Varun Gandhi is in BJP, if he walks here, then it might be a problem for him. My ideology does not match his ideology. At some point in time and maybe even today, Varun adopted another ideology and I cannot accept that ideology. I can meet him, hug him but I cannot accept that ideology.''

Rahul's remarks on Varun Gandhi came amid speculation that the BJP MP, who often has been critical of his party, might be joining the Congress.

The Congress leader further said the country's institutions were being controlled by the RSS and BJP as there was "pressure" on the media, bureaucracy, the Election Commission and judiciary. "Today all institutions of the country are controlled by the RSS and BJP. There is pressure on all institutions.

The Press, the bureaucracy and the Election Commission are under pressure, they also put pressure on the judiciary. This is not a fight between one political party and another. It is a fight among the institutions of the country," he added.

Rahul also said that the people of Punjab would not accept a situation where the government was run from Delhi. "Punjab needs a new vision. The people are complaining that their expectations are being belied. Only Congress can offer a long-term vision to Punjab," said Rahul.

Rahul avoided questions on the Sutlej-Yamuna Link (SYL) canal on water-sharing, mainly between Punjab and Haryana. "This is Bharat Jodo Yatra and this is a distractive question."

Man tries to hug Rahul, cops deny security breach

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Chandigarh

A man trying to hug Rahul Gandhi was pushed away by state Congress chief Amrinder Singh Raja Warring when the former party chief was walking for his Bharat Jodo Yatra on Tuesday.Inspector General of Police GS Dhillon said Rahul had himself called the man and there was no security breach. Warring also said there was no breach of security and that the man was an overenthusiastic supporter.

The yatra was on its way from Jhingar Khurd in Tanda to Gaunspur in Hoshiarpur of Punjab. In a video clip, a man in an orange and yellow hoodie ran towards Rahul and tried to hug him but was pushed away by Warring and others.

When the yatra halted at Ghaunspur village, Rahul said, "Why are you calling it a lapse? Someone came to hug me. Sometimes people are overexcited. I would not call it a security lapse.''

Raja says CPI will join Yatra in Srinagar in bid to unite patriotic forces

PARVEZ SULTAN @ New Delhi

COMMUNIST Party of India (CPI) general secretary D Raja has supported the Bharat Jodo Yatra led by Rahul Gandhi, saying all shades of secular, democratic and patriotic opinion must unite to reclaim the republic and protect constitutional values.

"We have fought the British raj unitedly; it is time we come together and defeat the RSS-BJP raj unitedly," said the communist leader in a letter to Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge. Raja said he and CPI Parliamentary Party leader Binoy Viswam would join the concluding stage of the yatra in Srinagar on January 30.

Appreciating the march, Raja said the call to unite against hatred was a welcome one. "It is imperative that all shades of secular democratic and patriotic opinion must unite to reclaim the republic, protect constitutional values and fight for an inclusive India, which Mahatma Gandhi, Dr Bhimrao Ambedkar and Shaheed Bagat Singh dreamt of. Mahatma Gandhi sacrificed his life for the cause of unity in the country, his martyrdom inspires us to shed the divisions of 'us' and 'them' and come together to shape a better India," his letter read.

On January 10, Kharge invited chiefs of 21 "like-minded" parties to join the concluding phase of the Bharat Jodo Yatra.

Attacking the BJP and RSS, Raja, in his letter, said that "values of equality, liberty, fraternity, justice, secularism, and socialism enshrined in the Preamble of our Constitution form the bedrock on which our democratic republic stands. The RSS-BJP stands opposite to the idea of India as envisioned by generations of freedom fighters. They sacrificed all they had for an egalitarian, tolerant and inclusive India. The RSS-BJP is trying to distort that very imagination."

JSPL flower show charms nature lovers

No less than a magnificent treat for nature lovers, the flower and plant exhibition organised by Jindal Steel & Power Ltd in association with 'Prakriti Ki Oar' society at Gandhi Udayan in Raipur was in full bloom. The long stretch of colourful flowers with myriad varieties. The garden enthusiasts learnt lessons on floriculture while many learnt about hybrid vegetables and fruits. Such flowers/fruit plants shows are held annually from the last 13 years in the state capital led by CM Bhupesh Baghel, who inaugurated the show, saying, 'Those close to nature won the battle against Covid-19'. Such flower shows eventually may turn out to be an inspiration for the next generation as well.

IAS officers on ED radar for money laundering

Since October last year, the Enforcement Directorate (ED) had carried out extensive raids across various locations in different districts of the state pursuing the probe into the cases related to money laundering and alleged coal scam. Besides these, around half a dozen bureaucrats have reportedly been summoned for questioning at the ED office in Raipur. The strength of IAS officers on ED radar comes as a major surprise in small cadre state like Chhattisgarh which has been already facing shortage of close to 25 percent of their sanctioned strength.

The launch of Jio True 5G services pledges to support new growth opportunities in the areas of e-governance, agriculture, energy, education, manufacturing, logistics, healthcare, folklore led localised tourism, self-help groups empowerment among others.

'Give us names': CM on Pilot barbs over paper leaks

RAJESH ASNANI @ Jaipur

A day after Rajasthan's former deputy chief minister Sachin Pilot indirectly targeted the state government over recent paper leaks in recruitment exams, saying that kingpins and not middlemen should be caught, Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot responded sharply to the allegations.

"Action has been taken in the paper leak incidents against some key members responsible. Leaders should give out the names, we will take action against them too," Gehlot said on Tuesday.

He was addressing a press conference in Jaipur at the end of his two-day chintan shivir to take stock of his government's performance.

On Monday, speaking at a rally in Nagaur district, Pilot had demanded that the government should "take action against the big sharks responsible for paper leaks".

Gehlot retorted that no politician or officer is involved in the paper leak and said, "We are trying to reach the main persons behind the paper leaks. We will not spare them."

He also targeted the BJP, saying they are making false statements. "The people of the Opposition parties say nothing about Uttar Pradesh or Madhya Pradesh. Paper leaks have been happening in those states as well. Here, people have been sent to jail or dismissed, houses were demolished, but nothing has been done there," he said.

Gehlot added: "As many as 25 lakh youths appeared in the teacher recruitment examination held in Rajasthan. We arranged free tranport for them. All the arrangements went well but the paper got leaked. We cancelled the exam. These gangsters will not be spared." Gehlot also said he will present the budget on February 8, which will be dedicated to youth and women.

'Paper leaks happening in MP, UP too'

Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot also targeted the BJP, saying they are making false statements. "The people of the Opposition parties say nothing about Uttar Pradesh or Madhya Pradesh. Paper leaks have been happening in those states as well. Here, people have been sent to jail or dismissed, houses were demolished, but nothing has been done there, he said."

NOMINATIONS

Confusion in MVA over state council biennial polls

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

THE differences in Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) surfaced during filing the nominations for the biennial elections of Maharashtra state legislative council. The Congress party has announced Dr Sudhir Tambe's candidature for the biennial elections of Maharashtra state legislative council for Nasik Division Graduate's seat, but at the eleventh hour, he refused to file the nominations to pave the way for his son Satyajeet Tambe. Satyajeet filed his nominations as an independent citing technical reason

After the Congress fiasco, Shiv Sena (Uddhav Balasaheb Thackeray) without consulting the alliance partner of MVA, declared their support to Shubhangi Patil, who has filed her nominations as an independent candidate for same Nashik Division graduate seat.

Leader of Opposition, Ajit Pawar said, "We are talking with other alliance partners. Now, it is clear that Congress has suspended Sudhir and actions against Satyajeet will also likely be taken. We have to find out the new candidates to extend support. We expect that all independent candidates withdraw the nominations and support only one candidate."

Land stabilising, situation will soon return to normal in Joshimath, say scientists

NARENDRA SETHI @ Joshimath

Research team checks the bearing capacity of soil in Joshimath | PTI

SCIENTISTS, who returned to the capital after studying the Joshimath land subsidence case, have made a new revelation with the news of comfort. These scientists say that this situation has arisen in Joshimath due to hydrostatic pressure as well as continuous base-erosion in the Alaknanda river after the 'Raini' disaster. However, the positive aspect is that most of the water from the sinking land has flowed into the Alaknanda River.

The soil of this area has also started to dry. In such a situation, this land submergence will decrease to a great extent. "The land of the land submergence area in Joshimath is trying to stabilise," the scientists believe. However, it will take some more time.

As soon as the summer starts, there will be a positive change in the situation. "The flow of water in JP Colony of Joshimath, which was happening at a speed of 10 litres per second, is now happening at 1.9 litres per second, which is comforting," said scientists, who didn't want to be named.

Scientists believe that the 'Raini' disaster in 2021 is also largely responsible for the Joshimath landslide. According to scientists, during the disaster, there was a large flow of water in Dhauli Ganga and Alaknanda rivers, which led river-bed erosion in the Alaknanda river.

Scientists have also brought some soil, water samples from the land subsidence area with them, which are being examined in the institute to find the amount of water in the soil, if the water from an unknown natural source or if it is coming out of the houses.

A team of scientists from Wadia Institute of Himalayan Geology, National Institute of Hydrology, IIT Roorkee, Geological Survey of India, IIRS and other institutes in the country are carrying out research about sinking.

Scientists say, "There is no proper drainage system here, so water mostly gets absorbed into the ground, leading to constant hydrostatic pressure."

IIM-Ranchi student found hanging in his hostel room

MUKESH RANJAN @ Ranchi

A student was allegedly found hanging from the ceiling of his hostel room at the Indian Institute of Management Ranchi campus in Jharkhand. According to police, dead body of a student, identified as Shivam Pandey, 22, from Varanasi in Uttar Predesh. The matter came to the fore when IIM-R officials broke opened the door after getting no response despite repeated attempts made by his hostel mates. Police said that it appears to be a case of suicide as the door was found closed from inside.

DSP Praveen Kumar said the door was said to be closed from the inside and his hands were tied with a rope.He further said that that some of the students informed the guard on Monday evening that nobody is responding from Shivam's room. When the guards went there and checked by removing the paper put on the window pan, found Shivam hanging, he said.

He said some of his friends told police that during the dinner on Sunday, he had told them that he was not feeling good. They are investigating the case taking every aspect into consideration, he added. Meanwhile, Shivam's father Akhileshwar Prasad, suspecting foul play, has demanded thorough investigation into the matter.

All abuzz: Honeybees to take the sting out of human-elephant conflict in MP

ANURAAG SINGH @ Bhopal

THE Madhya Pradesh forest department is banking on the power of bees to prevent incidents of human-elephant conflict (HEC) in the jungles of the eastern districts of the state.

The department has released a 25-page document enumerating the Recommended Operating Procedures (ROPs) to prevent HEC, including the recommendation to promote beekeeping in forest areas with frequent movement of wild tuskers from Chhattisgarh.

"Elephants are afraid of bees, as they can sting them in the trunk and eyes. The collective buzzing of bees troubles elephant. Keeping bee boxes on the route of the elephants will prevent them from intruding into human habitat," the document says.

It further recommends taking assistance of the union ministry for micro, small and medium enterprises to promote beekeeping among villagers residing in forest areas, or in the vicinity of forests where wild elephants movement is frequently reported. It also talks about the necessity for linking beekeeping promotion scheme with the National Rural Livelihood Mission to ensure proper compensation to bee-keepers in the event of destruction/damage to the bee boxes by elephants.

According to the MP's Principal Chief Conservator of Forests JS Chauhan, organised beekeeping could be one of the possible mechanisms through which human-elephant conflict can be prevented. However, Bhopal-based wildlife activist Ajay Dubey says the idea has some inherent problems.

"Can the state forest department tell us if this idea has been successfully implemented somewhere and achieved desired results? Further, in case of being bitten by a bee, how can it be ensured that the wild elephant in painful anger will only take a route which doesn't have human habitats? Also, these forest areas also have significant sloth bear population. What will happen if the bees end up attracting the bears to intrude and cause human casualties?" Dubey said.

"Instead of going for an interstate strategy with Chhattisgarh, Jharkhand and Odisha, the MP government is banking on such procedures to prevent HEC incidents," he added. Rising HEC incidents have led to 26 human casualties and also resulted in incidents of electrocution, poisoning of tuskers.

Pakistan PM offers peace talks, but ties it to restoring Art 370

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

PAKISTAN Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif created a flutter by claiming his country had learnt a "lesson" and wanted the UAE's help to set up a peace talks table with India.

A day later, his office in Islamabad tamped down expectations by drawing attention to Sharif's consistent position that talks with India can only take place after the latter restores Article 370 in Kashmir and reverses its decision of bifurcating J&K in 2019.

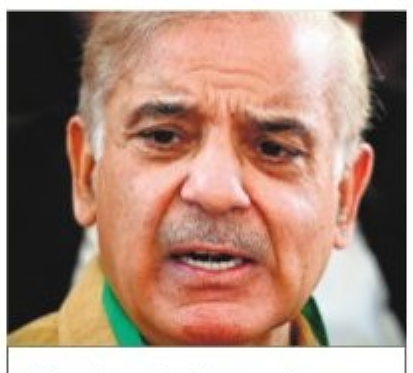
India chose not to respond to any of these statements made either by Sharif or his office.

In an interview to a Dubai-based Arabic channel on Monday, Sharif said, "I have requested my brother President Sheikh Mohammad bin Zayed (who also has good relations with India) that he can play an important role in bringing the two countries to the talking table." He was in the UAE for bilateral talks with Zayed.

Pakistan, he said, has learnt its lesson and "we want to live in peace provided we are able to resolve our genuine problems.... We have three wars with India and it only brought more misery, poverty and unemployment to the people. Want to live in peace with India. My message to the Indian leadership and Prime Minister Narendra Modi is that let us sit down and have serious and sincere talks to resolve our burning issues like Kashmir."

Sharif added, "We want to alleviate poverty, achieve prosperity, and provide education and health facilities and employment to our people and not waste our resources on bombs and ammunition." That, he said, was the message he want to give to Modi. "It is up to us to live peacefully and make progress or quarrel with each other, and waste time and resources," he added.

Interestingly, a joint statement issued by UAE and Pakistan after the bilateral talks made no mention of India. But the UAE had in the past prodded Pakistan to explore peace with India.



Trade relations frozen

Trade ties between Pakistan and India have been frozen since Article 370 was hollowed out in J&K on August 5, 2019. "Without India's revocation of this step, negotiations are not possible," the Pakistan prime minister's office said

Drug haul: Party drug worth ₹40cr seized

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @ Guwahati

TWO Assam Home Guards spurned an offer of ₹20 lakh from a smuggler and seized over 7.59 lakh contraband Yaba tablets worth ₹40 crore in the international market.

This is said to be the biggest ever seizure of Yaba tablets in the state. The recovery was made in Karimganj district of the Barak Valley in the wee hours of Tuesday.

The consignment was being smuggled in a car. The police arrested the driver, Hafij Uddin (36). He is a resident of Sombaribazar of Badarpur in the district. Additional Superintendent of Police Partha Pratim Das told journalists that the seizure was made by Home Guards Anupam Malakar and Jashim Uddin.

"Altogether 7,59,200 Yaba tablets were seized. We have never heard of a seizure of such a huge quantity of Yaba tablets in one operation," Das said.

ONE BOOK, ONE PEN, ONE CHILD, AND ONE TEACHER CAN CHANGE THE WORLD

MALALA YOUSAFZAI

China's GDP falls to 3%, second lowest in 50 yrs

BEIJING

HIT hard by the zero-Covid policy and slump in the real estate market, China's economy shrank to 3% in 2022, registering its second lowest growth rate in 50 years in the world's second-largest economy, as per data released on Tuesday.

The annual GDP of China totalled $17.94 trillion in 2022, falling below the 5.5% official target, the National Bureau of Statistics (NBS) said.

The world's No. 2 economy grew by 3% in 2022, less than half of the previous year's 8.1% rate. That was the second-lowest annual rate since at least the 1970s after 2020, when growth fell to 2.4%.

China's slump has hurt its trading partners by reducing demand for oil, food, consumer goods and other imports.

Economic growth sank to 2.9% over a year earlier in the three months ending in December from the previous quarter's 3.9%. Asian stock markets were mixed after the news. Market benchmarks in China and Hong Kong declined while Tokyo gained. South Korea and Australia fell.

A vendor wearing a face mask checks her smartphone at her store selling headwear near Qianmen Street, a popular tourist spot in Beijing on Tuesday | AP

China's economic growth is in long-term decline after hitting a peak of 14.2% in 2007, hampered by hurdles including an aging, shrinking workforce and growing curbs on Chinese access to Western technology due to security concerns.

The International Monetary Fund and private sector forecasters expect economic growth no higher than about 4% through the rest of the decade.

In December, retail sales fell 1.8% from a year earlier, but that was an improvement over the previous month's 5.9% contraction. Growth is forecast to improve this year to a still-modest level of about 5%. Economists point to weakness in real estate and slowing exports.

Factory output in 2022 rose 3.6% over the previous year, suggesting activity tumbled after hitting 4.8% in the third quarter of the year as the US and European demand for Chinese goods weakened under pressure from interest rate hikes to cool record-setting inflation. Agencies

Another Hindu temple in Oz vandalised by 'Khalistanis'

MELBOURNE

'KHALISTANI supporters' have allegedly vandalised a Hindu temple in Australia with anti-India graffiti, a media report said on Tuesday, in the second attack on a temple in Victoria state within a week The vandalism of the historic Shri Shiva Vishnu Temple in Carrum Downs, Victoria, took place on Monday, The Australia Today reported.

This act of vandalism was noticed when the devotees came for 'darshan' as the three-day long 'Thai Pongal' festival is being celebrated by the Tamil Hindu community.

Usha Senthilnathan, a long-time devotee of Shri Shiva Vishnu Temple said, "We are a Tamil minority group in Australia, a lot of us came as refugees to escape the religious persecution. This is my place of worship and it's not acceptable to me that these Khalistan supporters are vandalising it with their hate messages without any fear," she said. "I urge Premier Dan Andrews and Victoria Police to take strict action against these goons who are trying to scare the Victorian Hindu community," added Senthilnathan.

Hindu Council of Australia's Victoria chapter President Makrand Bhagwat said, "I can't tell you how upset I am for witnessing a second Hindu Temple vandalised for Khalistan propaganda. Our Temples vandalism is deplorable and should not be tolerated by the wider community."

Victorian Liberal Party MP Brad Battin said, "In no way, our future can be built on hate ...There is no place in...Australia for this kind of behaviour that we are seeing here."

On January 12, the Swaminarayan temple in the city of Melbourne was defaced by 'anti-social elements' with the anti-India graffiti. PTI

Final Russian strike toll 45, includes 5 kids

KYIV

THE final death toll from a weekend Russian missile strike on an apartment building in southeastern Ukraine reached 45, officials said on Tuesday, as the body of another child was pulled from the wreckage. Ukraine said rescuers had called off searches at a residential building in the city of Dnipro that was destroyed by a Russian missile over the weekend, killing dozens.

"At 1:00 pm (1100 GMT) on January 17, search and rescue operations in the city of Dnipro at the site of the rocket attack were completed," the state emergencies service said.

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy vowed to bring those responsible for the strike to justice, saying it's "a fundamental task" for Ukraine and its Western allies. "This strike at Dnipro, as well as other similar strikes, falls, in particular, under the jurisdiction of the International Criminal Court," he said in a video address.

Meanwhile, Russian Defence Minister Sergei Shoigu said on Tuesday that the country's military would increase its readiness from the current 1.15 million to 1.5 million in coming years. The military will form an army corps in the northwestern region of Karelia, near Finland, as well as three new motorised infantry and two airborne divisions. The military will also beef up seven existing motorised infantry brigades into divisions. Agencies

CORRUPTION

Vietnamese president resigns, criticised for major scandals

BANGKOK

VIETNAMESE President Nguyen Xuan Phuc resigned on Tuesday, becoming the most senior member of the government to step down after a series of high-profile corruption scandals for which he was held responsible.

Vietnam News Agency reported that he had resigned at a session of the ruling Communist Party's Central Committee that was held "to consider and give opinions on Comrade Nguyen Xuan Phuc's wish to stop holding positions, quit work and retire." The language strongly suggested that he was forced to step down.

An official statement published in state media praised Phuc for his efforts as PM in battling the pandemic. It added, however, that he bore political responsibility as the country's top executive for serious scandals involving his subordinates. AP

Holding new e-auction for RCap illegal, says Torrent

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @Mumbai

TORRENT GROUP on Tuesday said that conducting a new round of challenge mechanism or e-auction in the Reliance Capital (RCap) insolvency case is illegal and should not be allowed.

Speaking during the hearing at the National Company Law Tribunal (NCLT), Mukul Rohatgi, representing Torrent Investments, said that the law only allows a single round of auction and if the lenders are allowed to hold a new challenge mechanism, then the process would never end.

He said the Committee of Creditors (CoC) is trying to prove that the bids of both Torrent Investments and Hinduja Group are sub-optimal, so that it can start a fresh auction.

He said that their bid of ₹8,640 crore was above the threshold and the matter ended there.

As per the unanimous decision of lenders, the second round of challenge mechanism will be conducted on January 19.

Darius Khambata, representing Torrent, said that CoC minutes show that the challenge mechanism was concluded and conducted fairly and transparently, with Torrent as the highest bidder, and as per the relevant law the second auction is illegal. The hearing of Reliance Capital case will continue on Wednesday.

Sebi proposes fund blocking facility

Move aimed at protecting investors' money from misuse and default by stock brokers

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @Mumbai

IN a consultation paper released on Tuesday, the Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) proposed to introduce a blocking of funds facility for trading in secondary markets.

The move of the capital market regulator is aimed at protecting investors' money from misuse and default by stock brokers.

The proposed facility "allows investors to trade in secondary market based on blocked funds in one's bank account thereby eliminating the need to transfer funds to stock broker," said the consultation paper.

"Under the proposed model funds shall remain in the account of client but will be blocked in favour of clearing corporation till the expiry date of the block mandate or till block is released by the clearing corporation, whichever is earlier. The clearing corporation can debit funds from client account, limited to the amount specified in the block," it added. This process is similar to Application Supported by Blocked Amount (ASBA)-like facility already available for the primary market which ensures that money from an investor gets moved only when an allotment happens.

The facility would provide client level settlement visibility (both pay-in and pay-out) to clearing corporations (CC) by direct settlement of funds and securities between client or investor and CC.

Under the existing framework, clients' assets pass through stock broker and clearing member before reaching CC. Similarly, the pay-out released by CC follows a similar cycle of passing through clearing members and stock brokers before reaching the client.

While CCs provide final settlement instructions to their members each day, it is the stock broker who settles obligations with clients.

The markets regulator has suggested that Unified Payments Interface (UPI) Mandate service of single block and multiple debits can be integrated with the secondary markets to provide a block mechanism (similar to pledge-like mechanism in securities) whereby the clients will be able to block funds in their bank account for trading in secondary market, instead of transferring them upfront to the trading member, thereby providing enhanced protection of cash collateral.

The regulator has sought comments from market participants until February 16 on any operational challenges on the proposed concept, associated processes, transaction flow and risk management.

Once GST compensation regime ends, Delhi & Punjab among states to feel the pinch

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

PUNJAB, Delhi, Himachal Pradesh, Goa, Uttarakhand and Puducherry will be fiscally most impacted states once the GST compensation regime gets over.

The RBI in its latest report on state finances said the share of GST compensation in tax revenue of these states has exceeded 10% on average.

The central bank says going forward, in the absence of GST compensation, these states need to augment their revenue by increasing compliance, plugging leakages and widening tax bases. During the five-year transition period (July 2017 to June 2022), the top five compensation receiving states were Maharashtra, Karnataka, Gujarat, Tamil Nadu and Punjab. GST compensation to states ended on June 30, 2022. Though, compensation cess is continue to be levied till March 2026 to pay up for money borrowed to fill compensation gap during 2020-21 and 2021-22.

When GST was implemented, the Centre had guaranteed states a 14% annual increment in GST revenue for the first five years. Any shortfall from the target had to be compensated via GST compensation cess. As per RBI, 10 states are expected to fall short of 14% GST growth target as per their 2022-23 estimates. These states include Gujarat, Maharashtra, Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, Haryana, Punjab, Himachal Pradesh, Uttarakhand, J&K and Delhi.

The report says north-eastern states have been the biggest beneficiaries in GST regime, recording a compounded annual GST revenue growth of 27.5% since implementation as against 14.8% for all states.

CHINA

2022 ECONOMIC GROWTH ONE OF THE WORST ON RECORD

China's economic growth in 2022 slumped to one of its worst in nearly half a century as the fourth quarter was hit hard by stringent COVID-19 curbs and a property market slump, raising pressure on policymakers to unveil more stimulus this year. GDP grew 2.9 per cent in October to December from a year earlier, data from the National Bureau of Statistics (NBS) showed on Tuesday (Jan 17), slower than the third quarter's 3.9 per cent pace. The rate still exceeded the second quarter's 0.4 per cent expansion and market expectations of a 1.8 per cent gain. On a quarterly basis, GDP stalled, coming in at 0.0 per cent in the fourth quarter, compared with growth of 3.9 per cent in July to September. Beijing last month abruptly lifted its strict anti-virus measures that had severely restrained economic activity in 2022, but the relaxation has also led to a sharp rise in COVID-19 cases that economists say might hamper near term growth. For 2022, GDP expanded 3.0 per cent, badly missing the official target of "around 5.5 per cent" and braking sharply from 8.4 per cent growth in 2021.

INDONESIA

CENTRAL BANK SEES 2022 Q4 GDP GROWTH AT 4.81%

Indonesia's economic growth in the fourth quarter of 2022 may have slowed to 4.81% on a yearly basis, from 5.72% in the previous three months, according to a presentation made by central bank governor Perry Warjiyo on Tuesday. Bank Indonesia (BI) expected full-year 2022 economic growth to be at 5.25% and for 2023 growth to slow to 5.03%, his presentation slide for a forum with provincial governments showed. Indonesia's Coordinating Minister for Economic Affairs Airlangga Hartarto told the same forum the government expected 2023 growth to be within a range of 4.7% to 5.3%, below an official estimate for 2022 GDP expansion of between 5.2% to 5.3%. Indonesia's statistics bureau is due to release 2022 GDP data in early February. The central bank governor also said price pressures in Southeast Asia's largest economy would remain high in the first half of this year, but inflation would come down to around 3% to 4% in the second half. He urged local government leaders to ensure food distribution is not disrupted in order to stabilise prices.

TAIWAN

Q4 GDP MAY GROW 1.3% AS COOLING TECH DEMAND WEIGHS

Taiwan's economy likely expanded much more slowly in the fourth quarter compared to the prior quarter due to increased global economic headwinds denting demand for technology which is a key export, a Reuters poll showed on Tuesday. GDP likely grew just 1.3% in October-December versus a year earlier, the poll of 20 economists shows, after it expanded 4.01% year-on-year in the third quarter. Policymakers have said they expect full-year 2022 growth of around or less than 3%, slower than the 6.45% logged for 2021. That was the fastest rate in over a decade since it expanded 10.25% in 2010. Economists' forecasts for preliminary GDP data due on Wednesday varied widely from a contraction of 0.1% to growth of 3.5%. Demand for Taiwanese goods has been hit by COVID-19 controls and outbreaks in China, as well as soaring global inflation and tightening monetary policy. The economy in China, Taiwan's largest trading partner, expanded 2.9% in the fourth quarter year-on-year, and 3.0% for the full year of 2022, badly missing the official target of "around 5.5%".

INDUSTRY HEADCOUNTS

IT company	Net addition Q3FY23	Attrition Q3FY23
TCS	▼ 2,197	21.3%
Infosys	▲ 1,627	24.3%
Wipro	▼ 435	21.2%
HCL	▲ 2,945	21.7%

THOUGH top IT companies managed to beat street estimates in net profit and revenues in the seasonally weak December quarter, nearly all companies have reduced their hiring owing to evolving global macroeconomic headwinds.

Also, they over-hired in previous quarters leading to reduction in hiring in the third quarter.

For the first time in 10 quarters, TCS' net addition was reduced by 2,197 in December quarter. During the same quarter last year, the company had hired 28,238 employees. Its LTM (last twelve months) attrition stood at 21.3%. In the previous six quarters, TCS onboarded 135,000 fresh engineers. During the earnings call, the company's chief human resources officer (CHRO) Milind Lakkad said, "Last year, our net hiring was significantly ahead of our revenue growth. Our focus this year has been on utilising all that excess capacity and making our newest employees productive."

Infosys hired only 1,627 people in December quarter as against 12,450 in the same quarter last year. The number of hiring is based on what companies see on the demand side. Salil Parekh, CEO and MD of Infosys, said, "We have had a very strong hiring for the full year in FY23 and also before that. And we are making sure that all of that hiring goes through our various training, and is ready for deployment."

Wipro's headcount fell by 435 in December quarter. The company had hired 10,306 employees in Q3FY22. HCL is the only company that has hired 2,945 employees in the quarter compared to 10,143 a year-ago. Vijay Sivaram, CEO, Quess IT Staffing, said, "As the market course-corrects from last year's hiring surge, we have seen a moderation in hiring, attrition and subcontractor costs in IT sector. Freshers employed in last one-two years are now skilled and ready to be deployed in their roles, hence, we will see a tailwind in lateral hires this year."

He added that candidates with four-10 years of experience will be most sought-after and those with two-four years may bear the weight of a slowdown. "Every year, third quarter is slow for hiring due to holiday season, and the impact on hiring due to geopolitical scenarios, impending recession and cost conservation by firms is expected to continue for next few months. Despite muted quarter, we expect campus hiring to continue with 15,000 – 50,000 new hires by IT majors in 2023," said Sachin Alug, CEO, NLB Services.

ACQUISITION

ITC to acquire 100% stake in health food brand Yoga Bar

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

FMCG major ITC is strengthening its presence in the ₹45,000 crore, fast growing, nutrition-led healthy foods space, as it is acquiring a 100% stake in Sproutlife Foods Private Limited (SFPL), which operates under brand name 'Yoga Bar´, over a period of three-four years.

The first 47.5% stake in SFPL will be acquired, in tranches, by March 31, 2025; and the balance stake will be acquired in later date.

"Initial Investment of ₹175 crore will be made through primary subscription and secondary purchases for acquisition of 39.4% of the paid-up share capital on a fully diluted basis, which is expected to be completed by February 5, 2023, or such other later date as may be mutually agreed upon," said ITC in a regulatory filing.

"Further infusion of ₹80 crore will be made through primary subscription, in one or more tranches, by March 31, 2025, or such other later date as may be mutually agreed upon, based on pre-agreed pre-money valuation," it added.

Budget 2024: NAREDCO seeks ₹25K cr realty fund

ARSHAD KHAN @New Delhi

REAL ESTATE developers' body National Real Estate Development Council (NAREDCO) has urged the government to launch the second fund under the Special Window for Affordable and Mid-Income Housing (SWAMIH-2) in the upcoming Union Budget 2023-2024 to be presented on February 1.

In its letter to finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman, NAREDCO sought extension of the scheme to new projects and recommended including stress-free projects and commercial projects to the list of beneficiaries, widening scope in a bid to continue to support the real estate sector in the country..

"Extending the duration and expanding the scope of this fund would do wonders. Allocation of at least ₹25,000 crore for next fiscal alone shall boost the economy, create more jobs and attract huge investments," said Rajan Bandelkar, President, NAREDCO.

The industry body has also recommended that the fund should support complete project funding without factoring the sales inflows. It also suggested that under the special purpose fund, funding should be provided to all projects irrespective of their risk rating, however, with close monitoring of projects and airtight processes.

Sathish Kumar M, Chairman, NAREDCO Finance Committee (NFC), said, "Relaxing the eligibility criteria for SWAMIH fund beneficiaries, with strict monitoring and oversight would lead to massive growth in realty sector and the economy as a whole along with ensuring compliance and benefits to the genuine beneficiaries."

First launched in November 2019 with a total corpus of ₹15,530 crore, SWAMIH Investment Fund was formed to complete construction of stalled, brownfield, RERA-registered residential developments that are in the affordable housing or mid-income category, and are net worth positive and require last mile funding to complete construction.

Venkatesh Gopalkrishnan, CEO, Shapoorji Pallonji Real Estate, said, "As one of the important measures to support the industry, the government should put aside more funds under the stressed fund SWAMIH, as it will help improve consumer sentiment and residential activity. The banks and NBFCs should be strengthened to ensure that the industry can raise funds from these institutions."

Most real estate players are also hoping to get a relaxation on the home loan cap of ₹2 lakhs to be increased to ₹5 lakhs per annum in the upcoming budget.

Mkt up 1% on lower WPI, windfall tax cut; FII outflow remains concern

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

DOMESTIC equity market rallied on Tuesday with the benchmark indices -- NSE Nifty and BSE Sensex -- gaining nearly 1% each.

The rally is attributed to wholesale inflation dropping to a 2-year low in December 2022 and oil refiners edged ahead after the government slashed windfall tax on crude and aviation fuel. The Nifty50 closed at 18,053, up 158 points, whereas the BSE Sensex closed at 60,656, up 563 points.

However, relentless selling by the foreign institutional investors (FIIs) continues to remain a concern for the market. Except for Tuesday, FIIs were net sellers for 17 sessions in a row, selling around Rs 24,638 crore between December 23 and January 16. The selling, however, took a break on Tuesday and FIIs net inflow stood at a meager Rs 211.06 crore, according to the provisional NSE data. V K Vijayakumar, chief investment strategist at Geojit Financial Services, said the dominant trend impacting the near-term texture of the market is the sustained selling by FIIs for the eleventh time this month. There is selling pressure even in bluechip names such as HDFC Bank, that too, after impressive Q3 results. "The simple logic behind sustained FII selling is that India is the only large market where FIIs are still sitting on good profits after the disastrous 2022 performance in most global markets. FIIs are playing it safe by moving money to cheaper markets where there is valuation comfort," added Vijayakumar.

As per market experts, money is being moved to markets like China, Hong Kong and South Korea where current valuations are much lower.

Bank of India net profit rises 12% to ₹1,151 crore in Q3 on interest income

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

Net interest income rises 64% to ₹5,596 crore

The bank's net interest income, difference between interest earned and interest paid, improved 64% and stood at ₹5,596 crore for Q3FY23 as against ₹3,408 crore for third quarter of previous financial year. Non-interest income came at ₹1,432 crore for Q3 against ₹1,835 crore a year ago period.

PUBLIC sector lender Bank of India on Tuesday announced 12% increase in net profit to ₹1,151 crore for the quarter ending December 2022, supported by increase in net interest income. The bank had posted a net profit of ₹1,027 crore in the same quarter a year ago.

The bank's net interest income, difference between interest earned and interest paid, improved by 64% and stood at ₹5,596 crore for the third quarter of current financial year against ₹3,408 crore for third quarter of previous financial year. Non-interest income came at ₹1,432 crore for the third quarter against ₹1,835 crore in the third quarter of previous financial year.

"Net interest margin (Global) improved by 101 basis points (bps) year-on-year (YoY) to 3.28% in the third quarter of current fiscal year as against 2.27% in the same quarter in the previous fiscal year. It improved by 24 bps on a sequential basis from 3.04% in the second quarter of current financial year," said Atanu Kumar Das, managing director and CEO, Bank of India. "NIM (domestic) have improved by 121 bps YoY to 3.72% in the third quarter of current financial year against 2.51% in the same quarter of previous financial year. It has improved 23 bps on a sequential basis from 3.49% in the second quarter of current financial year," he added.

Total income increased to ₹14,159.60 crore in Q3FY23 from ₹11,211.14 crore in the year-ago period. The bank witnessed improvement on asset quality front with gross NPAs (non-performing assets) declining to 7.66% as against 10.46% at the end of third quarter of the previous financial year, while its net NPAs fell to 1.61% as against 2.66% in the same period a year ago.

ONLINE GAMING

MeitY meets gaming industry leaders, assures representation

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE proposed self-regulatory organisation (SRO) for online gming companies will have representation from every stakeholder of the industry, said the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (MeitY) on Tuesday.

The ministry, which is a nodal agency for online gaming, met top industry leaders of the industry to know their view on draft online gaming rules. "The SRO will represent every stakeholder of the industry, including most important one, which is gamers, children and parents. It will have industry representation, but it will also have government representation," said Minister of State Rajeev Chandrasekhar on the sidelines of the meeting.

The online gaming regulation, released by the minister on January 2, 2023, proposes a self-regulatory mechanism, mandatory verification of players and physical Indian address for online gaming firms. It will be covered under the new IT rules that were issued in 2021 for social media platforms. Last week, the minister discussed the draft online gaming rules with schools and parents.

F1 not replacing cancelled Chinese GP; 23 races in 2023

Formula One confirmed that it will not replace the cancelled Chinese Grand Prix, leaving the 2023 season at what is still a record 23 races. The race in Shanghai was cancelled for the fourth straight year in December, when China had some of the toughest restrictions of any country. Those rules have since been relaxed and cases of Covid-19 in China have surged.

CHILDREN OF UNEQUAL GODS

A look at the financial disparities on display at the ongoing Men's Hockey World Cup

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @Bhubaneswar

ON Thursday night, Wales face India in Pool D's final match. If this was a boxing bout, it wouldn't even go ahead for the sides belong in different weight classes. Wales, World Cup debutants and rookies, are flyweights. India, veterans and 15-time participants, are super heavyweights.

Off the field, the inequality becomes all the more galling. They will play at the Kalinga Stadium, a venue that can house 15000 (Wales' national stadium has seats for around 200). While Indian players are housed in state-of-the-art facilities in Bengaluru, Bhubaneswar or, from this year, Rourkela, Welsh players have to consider something more fundamental. Raising more than a 1000 pounds (roughly ₹1 lakh) every year.

Less than 24 hours after the mismatch in Bhubaneswar, another mismatch will take place, this time in Rourkela: South Africa vs Australia. While the Australian players can rely on the support of the government for travel, the South Africans who have come here have had to pay approximately 50,000 rand (₹2.39 lakh approx).

Custodian Gowan Jones was extremely intimate when speaking about this situation. "If we get given what we deserve, then these kinds of tight games could just end up in our favour," he said after his side went down 1-2 against Argentina. "It's tough. We have to concentrate on jobs, concentrate on training and concentrate on raising money. Each of us were told to look at (raising) 50,000 rand (to be here). People outside hockey can't believe that you have to pay to represent your country. Our rugby captain earns 50,000 rand a month. I gotta pay that money to be here. It doesn't make sense. We got the same badge and the same national anthem. Things have got to change."

So, why do the players do what they do? Playing with mates in front of full-houses deriving happiness from getting to do what they love the most. James Carson, who scored Wales men's first-ever World Cup goal, opens up. "I wouldn't change it for the world," he says. "During the week, we work from 9-5. We have to fit in gym sessions somewhere, whether it be in the morning, afternoon or evening. It's a tough gig but you get rewarded by competitions like this. It's an unbelievable experience. "In a typical week for me, I work as a teacher from 8.00 AM to 6.00 PM. Apart from that, we have our gym sessions, club hockey where we train Tuesday and Thursday night before weekend matches. It's tough but I know that every other member in our team is putting in the same amount of hard work. We are all accountants or teachers or lecturers so we come together for the weekend."

India, their opposition on Thursday, train together for over 200 days in a year, excluding the time they spend training during tournaments. While the players don't have a central contract, they are all compensated by the institutions and companies (railways, banks and so on) they represent. Hockey India will also pay them ₹50,000 for each match they win at the World Cup. A far cry from the lakh or so most Welsh players have had to pay every year.

For people on the outside, it may come as a shock — Carson admits that people are shocked that the team has to pay to represent the country — but within the setup, they take it on their chin. "No one wants to step away because of it, it's what brings them happiness (playing)," says Wales coach Daniel Newcombe. And, no, there is no added pressure because of this. Here's Wales captain Rupert Shipperley. "Never been about pressure just because we are investing in the programme. We are all friends, no hard feelings."

To an extent, there is inequality even in elite hockey. Australia may be one of the most decorated sides but their setup is also amateur. There is a centralised training system wherein the selected players move to Perth but they don't get paid for representing their country. "It's completely amateur in Australia," goalkeeper Andrew Charter says. "We have full-time jobs, train in the morning, go home and go to work. We have very understanding employers. I work for a mining company and they give me the leaves I need. We all move to Perth once we get selected. We don't get paid but the Australian government supports us and pays for these trips. Our sponsors too support us."

One team that does pay its players is England, whose centrally contracted players receive at least 20,000 pounds per year (estimated figures according to BBC in 2015). New Zealand is another side that pays its players. According to an agreement between Hockey New Zealand and Hockey Players Association, "... we're excited about the future of Hockey in New Zealand and our Vantage Black Sticks play a key role... It also sees Vantage Black Sticks players receiving a share of 25% of all HNZ player generated commercial revenue..." the body posted on their website in December.

CALL OF KALINGA 2.0 FIH ODISHA HOCKEY MEN'S WORLD CUP 2023

HOW FUNDING WORKS AT THIS WORLD CUP (SELECT TEAMS)

India: No central contract. Not paid to play but significant monetary incentives. Players don't have full time employment but are paid to by institutions they represent.

Australia: Not paid to play but have government support to travel. Have full-time jobs elsewhere but do have a centralised training programme in Perth.

Wales: Players have to pay to play (works out to be about half of all costs in a trip). Meet once a week and are employed elsewhere on a full-time basis.

South Africa: Played have paid roughly 50000 rand to be here.

New Zealand: Players are centrally contracted

England: Players are centrally contracted

Chile: Do not pay to play but players have access to a central pool that players can utilise to buy equipment or if they want to travel abroad

Belgium draw against Germany

Belgium's Cedric Charlier (C) in action against Germany | DEBADATTA MALLICK

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @ Bhubaneswar

THIS is what Belgium do. They always find a way. They either convert losses into draws or turn draws into wins. They have now stretched their unbeaten record across Olympics and World Cups to 17 (they last lost in the final of the Olympics in 2016). Against Germany in their second game of the World Cup, they had taken the lead and were sitting pretty. That's when they ceded a bit of their control — the thing they desire most on the turf — in the second quarter. They never reclaimed it as Germany scored two goals

Bizarre snafu, Japan sorry

In the dying embers of Japan's match against South Korea, they had 12 players on the field. It wasn't spotted by the onfield officials and the FIH have launched an investigation. The final result of the match (KOK-JPN 2-1) remains of course unaffected."

IT'S NEW ZEALAND NOW

As India take on New Zealand in the first of the three ODIs in Hyderabad on Wednesday, a look at key talking points...

Eyes on Rohit the batter

Although the results are going India's way, the Men in Blue would want Rohit Sharma to get back to what he does best - scoring big centuries. With Virat Kohli back in form, gbe the focus now has shifted to the skipper who has not scored a century in over three years. And, Rohit would want to make a big score in the series.

NZ plucky and dangerous

New Zealand are no pushovers. Though they will miss players like Kane Williamson and Tim Southee for the series, they still have good batters and pacers to rattle India. Stand-in-captain Tom Latham played a blinder the last time the two teams met in an ODI. The team is coming from a series high in Pakistan

Shreyas out, SKY likely to play

With Shreyas Iyer being ruled out of the series due to injury, Suryakumar Yadav is expected to take his place in the XI with Rajat Patidar replacing the former in the squad. Owing to Shreyas' prolific run in ODIs last year, SKY hasn't had much opportunities and this series would be crucial in getting his name in contention for the first-choice XI.

Ishan Kishan | AFP

Ishan to bat in middle-order

Despite his double century while opening the batting in his last match, Ishan Kishan will be batting in the middle order during the New Zealand series. With no KL Rahul, the southpaw will be donning the gloves and trying to make an impact in the No. 5/6 position. Kishan has batted in the middle-order thrice in the 10 ODIs he has played, therefore the adjustment should not be an issue.

65.07 NZ skipper Tom Latham thrives batting in India and he would want to continue to lead from the front in this series as well

Paralympian tests +ve, to attend ADDP hearing

FIROZ MIRZA @Chennai

FIVE-TIME paralympian Naresh Kumar Sharma has been asked to attend a hearing of the Anti Doping Disciplinary Panel of the National Anti Doping Agency (NADA) on Friday in relation to a failed dope test. It is understood that the para-shooter was tested on March 17 last year during the selection trials held to pick the Indian teams for international events including two World Cups. Sharma has been charged with a violation of the NADA Anti-Doping Rules 2.1 and 2.2. Prohibited substances, namely S5, diuretics and masking agents/Canrenone, S5 diuretics and masking agents/Intlaparnitle and P1. Beta Blockers/metoprolol were found in his A sample. Beta blockers are used by precision athletes like shooters to control the heartbeat.

"Yes, the test was conducted in March 2023 during the selection trials and we were apprised of Sharma's result in September," JP Nautiyal, Chairperson of Para Shooting — Sports Technical Committee, Paralympic Committee India (PCI), told this daily. Adding further, Nautiyal said, "Sharma couldn't make it to the team then and hence didn't represent the country."

Para-shooter Sharma admitted that his A sample has tested positive but claimed innocence. "I suffered a brain haemorrhage on January 29 last year. I lost sight in my right eye then. Given my financial condition, I didn't get hospitalised but took medicines prescribed by the doctors. I informed the dope control officer that I am on medication at the time of the test," said Sharma. The para-athlete also informed that he accepted the voluntary provisional suspension in September which is an ineligibility of two years. "Once I was told about the positive dope test, I submitted all related documents with the NADA. I also wrote an e-mail to the International Paralympic Committee (IPC), which in turn replied that the medicines I was prescribed didn't need therapeutic use exemption (TUE) form. I have also submitted the reply of the IPC with other documents to the NADA," added Sharma.

> I have been tested umpteen times during my career of more than two decades and never returned positive. I am quite confident that the panel will accept my arguments as I have submitted all the related documents

Deja vu for Sindhu; Lakshya, Saina win

ANMOL GURUNG @ New Delhi

IT was deja vu for PV Sindhu. Taking part in just her second match after returning from ankle injury last week, the Indian tasted a harsh reality in the ongoing India Open Super 750 event at the KD Jadhav Indoor Complex here on Tuesday. And it was a familiar opponent who denied her. With the Indian yet to grasp the pace of the game at the highest level and rusty after missing around five months of competitive badminton, Supanida Katethong of Thailand showed her readiness to assert her dominance and advance to the next round.

It was Supanida who had beaten the Indian in the last edition of the event too. With the crowd cheering out loud, Sindhu displayed courage (especially after the change of ends), something that helped her win numerous tense battles in the past. But on this cold Tuesday evening, that courage she showed was not quite enough. The World No 21 from Thailand prevailed 21-14, 22-20.

While Sindhu quietly exited the premises, it was a fruitful day for Lakshya Sen, who's India's best bet after Sindhu's swift exit. But Lakshya's win came at a cost, in India's perspective. Facing senior pro HS Prannoy for the second-straight week, Lakshya turned the tables this time with some display and won 21-14, 21-15. Later in the evening, Saina Nehwal had the crowd in raptures with a 21-17, 12-21, 21-19 victory over Mia Blichfeldt of Denmark.

Gayatri-Treesa pair shows teen spirit

ANMOL GURUNG @ New Delhi

IT was just their first win of the event but in some sense this was an immense victory for the gradually-improving Treesa Jolly and Gayatri Gopichand in the India Open Super 750 tournament, which commenced on Tuesday. Up against Margot Lambert and Anne Tran, a pair whom they had lost twice in as many matches, the Indian women's doubles pair — both 19 years young — displayed their attacking instincts, patience when the need arose and used their game intelligence to make course corrections when the match was not going in their favour. An apt definition of a 'fighting win'.

They are through to the second round with Tuesday's effort. Moreover, they'll be taking mental notes of all that transpired, an experience that could help them achieve their Olympic qualification aspirations. "It was amazing, playing at home. It was an intense match. I'm glad we could pull it off," Gayatri said.

In the deciding game, the Indian youngsters were cruising at 17-11 at one stage but let that six-point lead slip to put the home crowd, who were egging the duo, on the edge. "We just wanted to play safe on the court. We just wanted to fight. Some strategies weren't working," Gayatri reflected. But they managed to regain their focus and get the all-important 'W' to their CV. "We were calm and composed in the last game. It was a good learning experience," Treesa said.

The duo, who joined hands in 2021, is emitting signs that they're learning on the job in recent times and becoming a more-rounded pair. Just last season, they had surprised many by reaching the All England Championship semifinals. A few months later, they won Commonwealth Games bronze. Having entered the BWF World rankings at 433 in late 2021, the duo's steady development clearly reflects in their rankings. They are World No 16 and are No 9 in the World Tour rankings. If they can avoid injuries and continue to take their home work seriously, they have a more than fair chance of flying to Paris and making their presence felt there come 2024.

Nole, Murray triumph

AFP @ Melbourne

NOVAK Djokovic enjoyed a rousing reception on a winning return to the Australian Open on Tuesday and Andy Murray rolled back the years to stun Matteo Berrettini in a classic.

On a day of bans on Russian flags and weather-induced disruption, two of the sport's biggest names belatedly brought the focus back on tennis in Melbourne. A heavy title favourite, the 35-year-old Djokovic was back after his deportation last year because of his stance on Covid vaccines. If the Serb was worried about how he might be received at Melbourne Park, he needn't have been — the nine-time Australian Open champ walked out to loud cheers. Against the backdrop of chants of "Nole", Djokovic sent Spain's Roberto Carballes Baena packing at Rod Laver Arena, 6-3, 6-4, 6-0, to surge into round two.

Another 35-year-old Briton in Murray saved match point to defeat Italy's Berrettini 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-7 (7/9), 7-6 (10/6) at Rod Laver Arena, where the roof was closed because of the extreme heat. As the mercury rose, the heat forced play to be halted on outside courts. Play resumed on the outside courts about three hours later, only to be disrupted again in the evening by a torrential storm.

SELECT RESULTS: ● Men's (1st round): Andrey Rublev bt Dominic Thiem 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, Novak Djokovic bt Roberto Carballes Baena (ESP) 6-3, 6-4, 6-0, Taylor Fritz bt Nikoloz Basilashvili 6-4, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5, Alexander Zverev bt Juan Pablo Varillas 4-6, 6-1, 5-7, 7-6 (7/3), 6-4, Andy Murray bt Matteo Berrettini 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-7 (7/9), 7-6 (10/6), Casper Ruud bt Tomas Machac 6-3, 7-6 (8/6), 6-7 (5/7), 6-3; ● Women's (1st round): Karolina Pliskova bt Wang Xiyu 6-1, 6-3, Veronika Kudermetova bt Maryna Zanevska 6-2, 7-6 (7/4), Caroline Garcia bt Katherine Sebov 6-3, 6-0, Aryna Sabalenka bt Tereza Martincova 6-1, 6-4, Ons Jabeur bt Tamara Zidansek 7-6 (10/8), 4-6, 6-1

Jagadeesan slams century as Tamil Nadu take control

ASHOK VENUGOPAL @ Chennai

N JAGADEESAN'S century (125) and half centuries by B Indrajith (77), Pradosh Ranjan Paul (99 batting) and Vijay Shankar (53 batting) put Tamil Nadu in control against Assam on Day 1 of Elite Group B Ranji Trophy match played at the MA Chidambaram stadium here on Tuesday. Tamil Nadu were 386 for 4 in 90 overs at stumps.

With the hosts' chances of qualifying to the knock-outs gone in the wind, the Tamil Nadu batters played with purpose so as to gain as many points as possible and go up on the points table. The hosts batting more or less on the whole clicked. Had Jagadeesan who was in awesome form in Vijay Hazare tournament managed the same effort at the crucial junctures in the Ranji, Tamil Nadu would have been better placed.

Baba Indrajith too showed the will and came up with a valuable effort. But Pradosh, who has been in great form in this season, played effortlessly and his strokes square of the wicket had the left-handers's grace written all over it.

''Obviously I'm happy no matter what the situation was, 100 is 100 so I'm really happy about it and the way I went about my innings I was really satisfied but you know, it's not just about me,'' said Jagadeesan after the match.

Jagadeesan and B Indrajith added 157 runs in 35.1 overs for the third wicket while the unbroken fifth wicket partnership between Pradosh and Vijay is worth 150 runs in 33.5 overs.

The Karnataka government has proposed to lower the minimum age for purchasing and consuming alcohol in the state to 18 years and is currently seeking public feedback. Dese Gowda speaks to Bengalureans who think aloud about the proposition

AMIT ROY, PARTNER, SHILTON HOSPITALITY (WATSON'S)

The government obviously wouldn't have taken this decision overnight. A lot of thought and deliberation went into the proposition before it was announced. I don't believe it's just revenue-oriented, because the government will be responsible for the consequences. If it does come into force, I hope they also implement various checks and measures to prevent underage drinking. As long as that is taken care of, we respect the decision.

AJAY GOWDA, OWNER, BYG BREWSKI

If the new legislation to lower the minimum age can be effectively implemented, then it is a good idea. Because there are so many families who already offer alcohol to their children who are as young as 17. It's usually a bit of wine or beer. However, I'm not sure if the new law can be implemented in such a way that youngsters do not abuse alcohol and put their health and well-being at risk.

BHOOMI DATTANI, GRAPHIC DESIGNER

I don't think 18 year olds are mature enough to consume alcohol responsibly. But I know that a lot of them already consume alcohol illegally. So in a way legalisation would probably help them avoid getting in trouble, while also ensuring that they do not consume adulterated drinks. However, if the new proposition does indeed become a law, I believe there should be certain limits on quantity and type of alcohol.

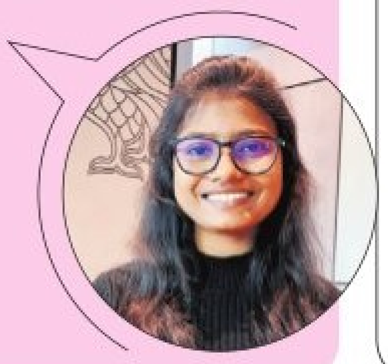
PIC FOR REPRESENTATIONAL PURPOSES ONLY

SAUMYA SINHA, CREATIVE WRITER

The age between 18 and 21 is a time when a person goes through a lot of changes in their life. Being allowed to consume alcohol at the crucial stage is not a great idea. They might be mature enough to vote, but voting isn't a health hazard. If the government's aim is to generate more revenue through excise duty from this proposition, they are doing so at the risk of the state's youth.

SANGEETHA DR, INFORMATION SECURITY CONSULTANT

The new law will have an adverse impact on the performance of college students. At that age, I don't believe most people possess the mental tools to make informed decisions about their safety, health and career prospects yet. From my experience, a lot of students consume alcohol because of peer pressure and the need to belong, so it will only serve to exacerbate that problem. Furthermore, it makes alcohol more accessible and might lead to people who are younger than 18 years to take up drinking.



GAYATHRI SRIYA, DESIGN ENGINEER, ELECTRONICS HARDWARE

It's a good idea, because at that age, most people, especially the younger generations, do possess the ability to make informed decisions. It will help teens avoid putting themselves at risk or get in trouble with the law. As long as it is implemented properly with proper checks, I don't think it would make alcohol more accessible to people younger than 18.

JEREMY THOMAS, ENTREPRENEUR

It doesn't make a difference either way, because I've seen a lot of people under 21 already slipping through the cracks, getting into spaces they are legally not allowed in. I guess health-wise lowering the drinking age might have an adverse impact, but on the other hand, people should be allowed to make their own choices. So, it's a complicated issue.

KNOW YOUR CITY

Arun Prasad, city-based history researcher, unravels interesting facts about Bengaluru in this weekly quiz series. So it's time for you to find out how familiar you are with the city, beyond its heritage buildings, IT parks and the pub culture.

THE QUIZ WILL BE PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

Send answers to bengalurucityexpress@gmail.com with the subject line 'Know Your City Quiz'

Correct answers and names of first three respondents with right answers will be featured in CE.

① The earliest known evidence of a place called 'Bengaluru' was found on an inscription stone dating back to 890 AD at a temple premises in Begur, a burgeoning locale on the southern outskirts of Bengaluru. The inscription mentions 'Bengaluru Kalaga' (meaning battle of Bengaluru) which took place between the Ganga and Nolamba dynasties. Name the temple premises in which the inscription was found.

② Chikkajala is a historical place in Bengaluru. The place is noted for a 12th century Chennakeshava temple built during the Hoysala Vishnuvardhana times. A prehistoric megalithic burial site dating back to 8BC is located in the area. Which part of Bengaluru is Chikkajala located in? North or South?

③ Hesaraghatta is located on the western outskirts of Bengaluru. The place is well known for a lake built in 1894 across river Arkavati during the tenure of Dewan of Mysore K Seshadri Iyer. The lake under 'Chamarajendra Water Works' project supplied purified potable water for the city for the first time. Name the well-known residential dance village set up in Hesaraghatta by Protima Bedi, a renowned Odissi dancer.

BOUNCING BACK WITH A BANG

Basti Bounce is the latest viral song from Brodha V studios, which also features content creator Jordindian. Speaking to CE, the rapper says it is a spin-off from Vainko, his last release

MONIKA MONALISA

RAPPER and musician Vighnesh Shivanand, aka Brodha V, has kickstarted the year with a bang with Basti Bounce. And we bet you can't stop humming it. With 1.5 million views in less than a week from its release, the song has already gone viral. A fun video with a local touch, Brodha V wanted to release it for Makar Sankranti, for people to enjoy with friends and family. "I wanted to release it around the festive time. I thought we should start the year with a bang and a feel-good vibe," says Brodha V.

Known for his rap, Brodha V usually tries to do different genres of music. "I have done songs which are supposed to be niche – Way Too Easy, Forever, etc. I have also done songs like Maari Kannu, which cater to the masses. I try to cater different kinds of audiences. For this song, I composed the song first. I've also added local elements to it. But I wanted it to carry a bit of swag," says Brodha V, adding that it is fun for him to see people making reels with the hook step of the song.

This is Brodha V's second collaboration with popular content creators, Jordindian, the first one being Vainko, which was featured in the second season of Family Man. And in the rapper's words, Basti Bounce is touted as the successor of Vainko. "The music itself was quite celebratory, it was fun and gave a vibe of victory. In Vainko, I showed Chinna paiyyan wanted to become a star and in this one, I show that he went ahead and became a star. I felt the story starts with Vaiko and ends here," says Brodha V, adding that there is a surprise appearance from Aishwarya Suresh who also starred in Vainko.

A still from the Basti Bounce video

Even the video of the song is quite entertaining. The musician was clear about how he wanted the song to be shot. "I was conscious of the fact that I wanted to make it like a movie song, rather than an indie song. I wanted it to be a big-scale project," he says.

While the UK PM Rishi Sunak decided to make mathematics compulsory for all students in England, academicians and students point out how such a system in India would be an exercise in futility

Solving the problem

TUNIR BISWAS

AFTER UK Prime Minister Rishi Sunak proposed to make math compulsory for all England students up to the age of 18, opinions rushed in on the matter. Social media was flooded with folks humouring Sunak's decision as one in agreement with all 'Indian fathers'. If we step out of the bubble, many suggest such a model would be fatal for Indian students because of the way math is taught. "I studied math until I was 18, but never understood the point. The focus was on quickly solving exam-oriented questions. There is a stigma attached to being poor at math," says Pooja Das, senior content strategist at a startup.

Neelakantha Bhanu Prakash, who became the 'world's fastest human calculator' in 2020 after winning gold for India in the Mental Calculation World Championship at Mind Sports Olympiad and breaking mathematician Shakuntala Devi's record, believes math should be taught differently if made compulsory. "School math is restricted to functional outcomes. No one teaches how math is used in music or architecture. It needs to be introduced as a language. When we teach English to children, the goal is to not make everyone an author. It is to ensure they can communicate in the language. That is how it should be with math," says Prakash.

Senior curator of the Visvesvaraya Industrial and Technological Museum, Manash Bagchi, believes if the concept of additional subjects is brought back, things can work better. "The whole concept was that students get into it purely based on their interest as the marks scored in that subject weren't included in their final results. You were learning purely for your gain. Nowadays, math is becoming interdisciplinary to an extent that many subjects in the humanities fields also require it. In foreign institutions, students have freedom to decide their subjects. We remain rigid. Until we make our system more malleable to a student's needs, a compulsory math education won't work out well," shares Bagchi.

Agreeing with Das, Sauditya Jaisal, a UG student in math at the IISc, feels making students understand the motivations behind learning math is key. "Students would like to know why it is useful. They need to be taught its applications in reality. Probability is useful in real-life problems like finance. The teaching of all these is totally missing," concludes Jaiswal.

QUICK FIX

SPINACH CORN CUTLET

Contributed by Priya Shiva, Chennai

INGREDIENTS

- Spinach: 1 cup, chopped
- Potato: 1, boiled and mashed
- Onion: 1, finely chopped
- Black pepper powder: 1 tsp
- Cornflour: 2 tbsp
- Vegetable oil: 4 tbsp
- Sweet corn: 1/2 cup. boiled
- Bread slices: 2
- Red chilli powder: 1 tsp
- Bread crumbs: 1/2 cup
- Salt to taste

METHOD

- Soak the bread slices in water for a few seconds. Squeeze the bread to drain the water completely.
- Clean and chop spinach. Boil it in water for two minutes and drain the water.
- Take a bowl and add spinach, potato, corn, mashed bread, onion, salt, red chilli powder, pepper powder and combine it.
- Add cornflour and salt in a separate bowl and make a paste by adding some water to it.
- Take the spinach corn mix in your hand and make a ball of it. Lightly flatten it.
- Dip in cornflour mix and then dip it in bread crumbs.
- Heat a frying pan and add 1 tsp oil. Now let the discs cook for a minute on medium heat level.
- Turn it, add a few drops of oil to all discs and cook the other side too till it turns light brown.
- You can serve it with any dip or your choice.

FIT BIT

SITTING SWAN POSE

This is an elegant combination of a gentle hip-opener, gives an effective hamstring stretch and a moderate chest opener. This restorative and seated pose is a grounding practice, which works on the connecting tissues when held longer. This pose can be done before or after a run and can release any strain in the hamstrings and glutes.

STEPS

- Start in Dandasana (Staff Pose). Inhale and place your right ankle on your left knee, keeping the ankle and foot alert and not sinking.
- Keep the left foot firm on the mat and now slowly take the arms a little behind, in a relaxed position.
- Open the chest. Roll the shoulders back away from the ears.
- Holding it, settle to a comfortable chest opening with relaxed arms.
- Make sure that you don't collapse the chest.
- Hip opening is natural and should not be forced.
- Then, breathe and relax into the hips.
- Now, feel the Yin Yoga and the natural opening sensations.
- Stay here for a good 3-5 minutes and feel the deeper release and relaxation.
- Time is the magic ingredient of Yin Yoga.
- Then, come back to Dandasana, to align the body and do it with the other leg.
- After practising both the sides, release and relax in Savasana (Corpse Pose).

BENEFITS

- Helps reduce the stiffness in the outer hip, opens pelvic muscles.
- Gives a moderate stretch to the arms and opens shoulder blades.
- Opens the chest and moderately elongates the diaphragm.
- Increases space in the chest, enhancing oxygen supply.
- Brings confidence and enhances the body alignment.
- Good prana flows in the lower and upper body. Reduces PMS.
- Releases negative energies, and creates a balance in the Anahata (Heart) Chakra.
- Beneficial for sciatica, back pain.

LIMITATIONS

People with recent shoulder or wrist injuries or recovering from surgeries in the knees or hips, have weak knees or undergone surgery, should avoid this pose.

Pregnant women who have been into fitness can do it.

NARRATING STORIES TO NEW-AGE KIDS

HRIDAY RANJAN
Urban Bourbon

(Writer, comedian)

I recently got invited as a 'storyteller' in my hometown Bhubaneswar as part of a storytelling festival. I am required to narrate stories to children as part of a city-wide festival celebrating the art of storytelling. At first, I was elated.

My first-ever association with the organisation in question was when I volunteered to help out children who were displaced due to religious conflicts. I was a commerce graduate with no idea about my future. I narrated stories to the children from books, and found that I greatly enjoyed it. The stint introduced me to people, got me a job in advertising, and set me on a career in journalism and humour writing. I daresay it changed my life, and it all came full circle to be invited as a guest storyteller by the same organisation after more than a decade.

I have always believed that we are surrounded by stories. Listen to people describe their trips to Goa, and you will hear stories with various levels of exaggeration. When I worked as a teacher, I would listen to children come up with the wildest stories to explain their absence from school the previous day. One kid passionately explained to me how he had diligently completed his homework, but the cow ate all of it while he was sleeping! Or look at how we ask for leaves from work – a mix of fact and fiction. Of late, our cook has the greatest stories to narrate. Whenever he misses work, he appears the next day to narrate a story that would make James Cameron blush. They all begin with him drinking a beer, and then flow into a smorgasbord of action, emotions and comedy!

But how am I going to engage the kids of today? When I began, kids only had access to televisions. But in more than a decade, the entire world of multimedia has transformed beyond recognition. Kids today have all kinds of resources available to them – smartphones with 4G connections, YouTube channels specially dedicated to kids. OTT platforms designed to keep children hooked on for hours at stretch while their parents negotiate with their bosses over Zoom calls. How was I going to keep them engaged?

Also, what kind of stories should I tell them? Stories of kings and queens might be obsolete for today's kids. The innocent Panchatantra stories featuring animals and birds (and a moral at the end) might be too simplistic. I considered stories from history – but they must be listening to them at school. Why become an unpaid history tuition teacher for the children? Ghost stories? Superhero stories? I am not sure if I can compete with what is available on the web.

And that is when it struck me. A lot of my writer friends today are scared stiff about the entry of AI algorithms like ChatGPT. And just like a children's story, I decided to transform the monster into a friend. I shall use AI to generate stories and tweak them for the kids. A superhero who fought for the rights of forest-dwellers after landing on earth from outer space. Or a crocodile that can hack human beings into loving them. Or a story of two brothers who find their parents kidnapped by an evil billionaire on Mars. Over the last few days, I have been cranking keywords into AI sites to come up with stories. Of course, the reaction of the children will decide if my technique will work. And if they don't, I can always blame AI for it. The intelligence, after all, was 'artificial'!

IS THE FUTURE OF BOOKS PHYGITAL?

WHEN Michelin Star chef Vikas Khanna released his Sacred Foods of India on June 22, 2022, it was the first phygital (physical plus digital) book ever published. Only two physical copies with NFTs were made and each was sold for $50,000 – one in Dubai and one in New York. The books came in a pure sandalwood box, which requires official Indian government certification. Another 200 copies are available in Maplewood boxes adorned with gemstones and crystals and are sold via Akshaya.io (the cost depends on the value of Etherium). The books are printed on paper acquired from "special sources" in Italy, meant to last for generations, vegetable glue has been used, and the ink is sourced from Japan.

So, what exactly is a phygital book? For the lay person, let me unwrap what is a non-fungible token (NFT) and what NFT means for a book. Fungibility is the property of being exchangeable for other assets of the same kind without any change in value or usability. For instance, a US dollar is fungible, because, at a given point in time, you could exchange any one dollar for any other, and your new dollar would have the same value and usability as the one you traded. The NFT is simply a record of who owns a unique piece of digital content and hence cannot be exchanged. That content can be art, music, books, graphics, tweets, memes, games — you name it.

As a fan of physical books, I have often wondered how anyone could ever own a digital book. When you buy a book on Kindle, you don't own the copy. Even a first edition or a signed book online is so easy to copy or share. Also, if the platform (say Amazon) ceases to exist, so will your digital book. That's where NFTs can help to make a book unique and provide an equivalent of a certificate of authentication in a digital world. Of course, since it is expensive to mint an NFT, one would only do it for a rare book.

Once you buy an NFT, it becomes your legal property. It's more secure than a typical digital transaction because the records are kept in blockchain, which offers a public record that cannot be hacked or therefore pirated. However, the biggest advantage I see in an NFT for a book is when reselling a rare book. In the secondhand book trading industry, the royalty of the second sale never reaches the author. If we include smart contracts in the NFT, authors and other involved parties can continue to reap a smaller percentage of royalties on those resales, forever.

We now have an answer to owning first editions, special editions or signed copies in the digital world, but its biggest downside is the environmental cost. Whenever a new NFT is minted, it requires huge computing power which in turn costs a lot of energy. But like with every technology, over time, if NFTs become a commodity, we may see a surge in its usage. For now, NFTs will be particularly useful for high end, branded luxury items (eg. if you want to ensure that your Versace handbag is not a duplicate from China, NFT is the way to go). And for a digital native generation, a digital product is as real as a physical one!

The best version of a book, one that will satisfy all kinds of book lovers, seems to be the phygital copy – both the physical and digital NFT.

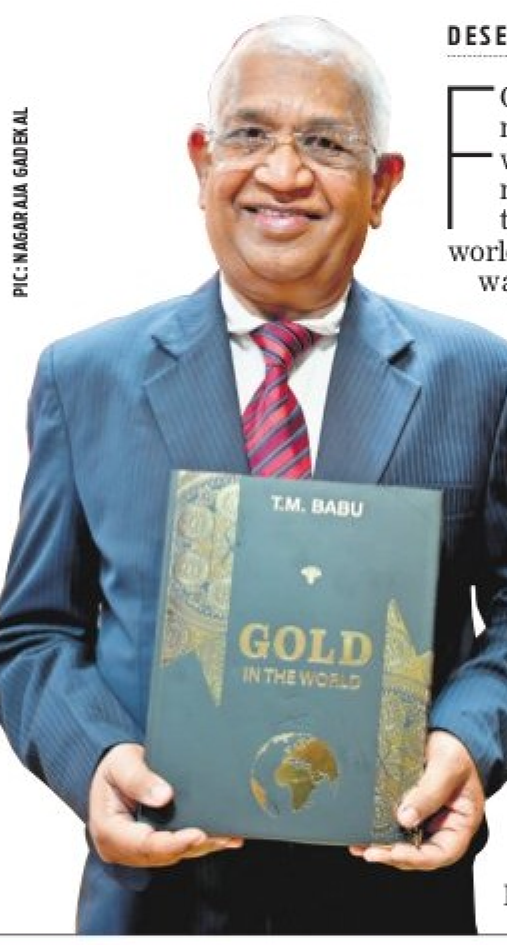
Proving its metal

Exploration geologist and author T Manohar Babu speaks to CE about his newest book Gold in the World, and the importance of the shiny metal in the modern world and more



PIC: NAGARAJA GADEKAL

DESE GOWDA

FOR thousands of years, humans have been fascinated with gold, and the yellow metal has played an important role in shaping the world. For centuries, the metal was used as a medium of exchange, store of wealth and to project wealth and power.

The industrial revolution and advancements in science have unearthed rare and more precious metals than gold, while most countries have long moved away from the gold standard to anchor their monetary systems. And yet, it continues to be prominent in the modern society, not just as jewellery, but as a stable investment, a conductive material in modern electronic devices among others.

T Manohar Babu, an exploration geologist and author, believes that there is a lack of a comprehensive literary work that explores all aspects of gold – its history, chemical properties and availability. To this end, Babu has come out with his newest book titled Gold in the World, which explores the yellow metal's origins, uses through history and its continued importance in the modern world, written in an easy manner and interspersed with illustrations and photographs. It was recently released at C. Krishniah Chetty Group of Jewellers in the presence of director, C Vinod Hayagriv.

"During my early years as an exploration geologist, I searched for a comprehensive book that will teach you everything you need to know about gold. But I couldn't find a single book, even at the British Library. I found books that explored gold in particular regions or at a particular point of time, but none that completely encompassed the metal's history. So, I thought I should write such a book," says Babu.

Commonly known as 'Tin Babu' for his role in the discovery of a tin deposit in Bastar, Chhattisgarh, Babu has over five decades of experience working with precious metals, which he says came in handy while writing the book.

For centuries, India was one of the few sources of precious metals in the world, but in the last two centuries, the country's production of gold has steadily fallen, while demand has increased exponentially. Babu feels that India could meet its domestic demand for gold, if production were to be restarted in the numerous gold mines that have been closed due to unprofitability. "If the government was to hand over these mines to the private sector, modern advances can be used to extract minerals in an efficient manner and we wouldn't have to rely on imports," he says.

Ravi Shankar

‘I ENJOY DELIVERING DIALOGUES AS A VILLAIN’

says Ravi Shankar, who is happy to be the antagonist in demand. The actor shares his experience of working in Kranti

A SHARADHAA

KRANTI has multiple villains and according to Ravi Shankar, who plays one of the main antagonists, one villain is not enough to face off the Challenging star Darshan. “He is one actor, who has the biggest mass appeal on the silver screen. So, it is always best to have support in the form of multiple villains,” says Ravi Shankar, who adds that the formula of having a handful of antagonists have forever existed and is an interesting idea in any mass entertaining film. “Apart from me, there is Tarun Raj Arora, Sampath, and Raghu, who also appear as villain in the film.”

The actor, who is popular for his voice, is also a well-known dubbing artist. How does he manage to differentiate himself from regular villains? “My advantage is the baritone of my voice that runs in my family, which is famous among the dubbing circuit. And the filmmakers have made use of this skill of mine. I have some interesting kadak dialogues in this actioner. There are directors, who specially pen lines for us, and apart from action, I enjoy delivering dialogues as a villain,” he says.

Ravi Shankar, has worked with Darshan in Kurukshetra, Yajamana, Odeya, and Roberrt. The streak continues with Kranti and the upcoming film Garadi. “I feel lucky to have worked in around 6 films with Darshan. In Kranti, every character has importance and director Harikrishna has designed all of them very well. With education as a the central theme, packaging commercial aspects in a 2 hour 30 mintue film is a big task, but he has achieved it. Darshan fans are in for a feast and every dialogue is whistle-worthy,” he says.

The film backed by Shylaja Nag and Suresha B under Media House Studios is slated for release on January 26. The film, which has music by director Harikrishna himself and cinematography is by Karunakar.

Tarun Raj Arora

‘IT FEELS SPECIAL TO DEBUT IN A DARSHAN FILM’

... says multilingual actor Tarun Raj Arora, who has studied in B’luru, talks about his first Kannada film.

TARUN Raj Arora, who has worked in Hindi, Tamil, Telugu, and Malayalam industries, will be debuting in Kannada with Kranti. He has worked in films like *Pyar Mein Kabhi Kabhi, Jab We Me*t in Hindi, *Kanithan, Kaththi Sanda*i in Tamil, and Khaidi No. 150 in Telugu to name a few. Being someone who has studied in Bangalore, he calls this film special, especially since it has him playing the antagonist to Challenging Star Darshan in a V Harikrishna directorial. “Having worked in all the south Indian industries, and Bollywood, I was looking forward to getting an opportunity in Kannada. Darshan has an extraordinary mass appeal, and debuting in his film is a perfect launchpad. I have also dubbed for the film, which is another reason to rejoice. I hope that people will enjoy my work in Kranti, and I will be needing their blessings and wishes,” he says.

Amoolya Gowda makes her leading role debut with Kurudu Kanchana

CE FEATURES

MODEL-turned-actor Amoolya Gowda, a multifaceted talent, who is a dubbing artiste, and an anchor, has been the face of a handful of teleserials like Aparanji, Agnisakshi, and Nan Arasi Radhe. Amoolya is set to make her mark as a full-fledged heroine in Kurudu Kanchana.

Directed by S Pradeep Varma, the film also stars Kiran Raj. Amoolya plays Janni, who is labelled as hyper, bubbly, and straightforward. The makers have completed the talkie portions and will be heading to Kerala for a song shoot later this month.

“Having interviewed stars like Shivarajkumar, Upendra, Malashree, Ramya, Sangeetha Sringeri, and Bharathi Vishnuvardhan, they had a major influence on me and made me focus my attention on cinema. Although I faced a few hiccups with intial projects not taking off, I’m finally glad to make an entry into cinema with Kurudu Kanchana,” she says. Backed by V Talkies, Kurudu Kanchana has music by Geetha Kaivar, and cinematography by Praveen Shetty.

CE FEATURES

VINAY Dee Kademane, who has a Masters in psychology and has worked as a counselor and part-time lecturer, is finally realising his passion for cinema by making his debut directorial. Titled Dee, the film revolves around the lead characters named Deepak and Divya, and a Dollar (pendant) plays a pivotal part in the narrative. “Dee is a romantic drama, which is entirely set in and around a forest area. The entire shoot was completed in 55 days,” says Vinay, adding, “My first project was supposed to be Kademane, which was ready, but could not see its release due to various reasons. So Dee becomes my first feature outing.”

Apart from direction, Vinay is also playing the lead and is the co-producer of the crowdfunded project. “I had five stories, but going by the budget, I chose to direct a love story,” he says.

Dee has Mandya Ramesh’s daughter Disha playing the female lead and features Harini, Raju Balawadi, and Nagendra Urs, in pivotal roles.

Produced by VDK Group, Dee will have cinematography by Allan Bharath, music by Urm Steven Satish, and lyrics by Kaviraj and director Vinay.

CINEMA WITHOUT BORDERS

In this weekly column, the writer introduces you to powerful cinema from across the world

SOMETIMES a film can acquire added significance and nuance in conjunction with another. I saw Santiago Mitre’s Argentina, 1985 just the day after having wrapped up Netflix’s new series Trial By Fire. And the two are etched in my mind as companion pieces. On the face of it, they have very little in common despite both being based on real events. Both stories are set in different periods and places. While one is set in 1984-85 in the newly democratic Argentina, after the end of the military dictatorship that lasted from 1976-1983, the other captures the aftermath of Delhi’s Uphaar Cinema Fire Tragedy of June 13, 1997. But both resonate deeply in their persuasive portrayals of the vital, tenacious, protracted, and never-ending fights for justice.

Mitre’s account of the Trial of the Juntas focuses on prosecutor Julio Strassera (Ricardo Darin) and deputy prosecutor Luis Moreno Ocampo (Peter Lanzani) in their efforts to get the commanders of the violent military dictatorship convicted for their crimes against humanity. It is also about an entire nation, split wide open in its opinion on the issue, squaring up with its essential conscience. On the one hand is the abduction, detention, interrogation, torture, disappearance, and death of innocent citizens. On the other hand, is the assertion by the Supreme Council of the Armed Forces. It was all part of a necessary war against the subversive, anti-national forces funded by the foreign hand. The world seemingly pared down to two camps—“fascists” and “guerillas”.

Mitre starts by establishing the shadowy, murky times with the overwhelming sense of suspicion rife in the political space, entering even the familial zone. Strassera is wary of his daughter Veronica’s boyfriend (supposedly from a military family) and has his son young son Javier spy on his sister. Meanwhile, there are apprehensions about the trial remaining stuck despite the new government being in power for seven months. Would it be taken off the military court to move to the civilian court? Would it follow a proper procedure? Would it be fair? “History is not made by men like me,” says Strassera. But it’s for him to be on the right side of history by prosecuting the most important case in the history of Argentina. It has its repercussions—threatening calls, getting shadowed by moles and a persistent sense of danger against which he must stand tall. It’s tough not to admire him, his gutsy family or his deputy Ocampo who dares to go against the dominant ideology of his family at the risk of becoming a castaway.

Mitre mixes courtroom drama with the elements of a thriller and manages to spotlight humour even in dark and dreary times. A chuckle-worthy sequence is when Strassera struggles to find any associates to work with him on the trial because ostensibly everyone has turned a “super fascist”. With older lawyers scared to be part of the trial and the bourgeoisie sympathizing with the military, he must put together a team of young, inexperienced lawyers. Apart from the case, they would also help win over the old-fashioned middle class and won’t see them as communists or human rights activists–two of the most reviled categories of citizens in its eyes.

The selection of the young team is one of the most entertaining segments and brings the “triumph of the underdog” arc into the film. Will they be able to dig out the information that no one is willing to share to prove the systematic excesses of the commanders Dismissed and laughed at as chicas (young girls), they eventually deliver evidence in the form of 16 volumes of 4000 pages with 709 cases and over 800 witness testimonies, literally like hitting the ball out of the park or scoring a sixer or landing a goal. However, the poignant testimonies of the victims give the film its emotional weight. Especially, a pregnant woman who was tortured and denied the right to hold the child she gave birth to in detention. And the child lay on the floor with the umbilical cord attached. Is a newborn also a threat to the nation and a legitimate military target? It all comes together in the rousing closing argument of Strassera that stresses respecting memory, siding with truth and delivering peace and justice. A nation must confront its history, however problematic, to resurrect itself for the future and make a vow that, “never again” shall the grotesque deeds be repeated.

Argentina, 1985 won the Golden Globe in the Best Picture—Non-English Language category, beating RRR, Decision to Leave, Close and All Quiet On The Western Front. The film, which opened at the Venice International Film Festival last year and is a front-runner for the Best International Feature Film at the Oscars, is available worldwide on Amazon Prime Video. My only grudge is that the English dubbed version leaves the film curiously disembodied, shorn of an all-out heft and impact.

DIL RAJU REVEALS PLANS FOR PAN INDIA PROJECTS

Prashanth Neel

Dil Raju

CE FEATURES

PRODUCER Dil Raju, who is basking in the success of Varisu (Vaarasudu) has revealed plans to produce high-budget pan India projects.

In a recent interview with a TV channel, the producer said, "We are focusing on larger-than-life content and stories for VFX-based films are being readied. We have a story named Jatayu by Indraganti Mohana Krishna, Vishwambara by Sailesh Kolanu of HIT-fame and have finalised Prashanth Neel's Ravanam. I'm looking forward to such stories now."

Speculations are rife that Ravanam will bring Prashanth Neel and Prabhas together once again after Salaar, which is under production now. Reports suggest that around 30-35 days of filming is left for Salaar. Considering the nascency of the projects stated by Dil Raju and present commitments of the filmmakers involved, the films will take some time to materialise.

Meanwhile, Dil Raju has Shankar's RC 15, starring Ram Charan and Kiara Advani, in the middle of production.
